Costs soar on oil leak

While work continues to correct the damage caused by an oil leak at Wilmington High School, concern is building among town officials over the cost of the project.

With a bill of nearly $50,000 already paid for work performed in May, officials were shocked on Tuesday night last week when they saw the second bill, covering work from June 1 to the (then) present time. The amount was $255,000.

Selectman Dan Ballou requested the bill during an outdoor, on-site meeting. While the other selectmen were viewing another part of the site, Ballou went over the bill with Joseph Palotta, president of Pollution Control Unlimited, the contractor on the job.

When the bill was given to Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, he returned it, asking Palotta to reconsider the price. Ballou later objected to Stapczynski returning the bill without making a copy. The town manager said that he did not think it would be in the town's best interests to accept the bill, and that if it were needed later it could be requested under disclosure.

Ballou has raised a number of questions regarding the project — including the management of the job by the town, costs, and other points.

The town manager has answers for many of Ballou's questions, and maintains that the management has been the best possible under the emergency circumstances. He, in turn, is concerned about Ballou's manner of addressing the questions.

One of the key questions is why a geo-hydrologist was not hired early into the project, to determine the scope of the problem. The contractor did have a hydrologist on-site last week, drilling test wells. The town manager said that the school department had previously expressed concern about disruption of classes. Drilling wells and taking core samples, he said, was quite noisy. Because the end of the school year was approaching, they elected to hold off.

Ballou is of the opinion that the town should use a geo-hydrologist of its own, not one subcontracted to Pollution Control.

The test wells drilled last week, at seven locations on the school property, came up clean. The pollution has not spread beyond the immediate area of the leak.

Another question is the selection of the contractor. Pollution Control Unlimited was hired after the town received three telephone quotes on the price of removing tanks, and the price of removing soil. Pollution Control Unlimited, though, was the only contractor called who was on a list of contractors licensed by the DEQE to do the work. The town manager said that the other two firms were called because they could remove the tanks, and then subcontract the soil removal to a licensed firm.

As for the money involved, the town manager said that he, too, was shocked when he saw the bill for $255,000. That is why he returned it and asked for reconsideration. Ballou has checked with the company in Rhode Island which is accepting the contaminated soil. That firm is charging $24 or $25 a ton, he said. With trucks holding about 25 tons, that would be $625 a load. Added to that is a charge of $300 for trucking, and $100 for loading. With these costs totaling $1025, why is the contractor charging the town $2200 a load? The standard mark-up, he said, was 20 percent.

It is on that figure that the town manager hopes to make secure a reduction of the bill.

Rep. Jim Miceli, meanwhile, has been working to secure an emergency appropriation of $400,000 to cover the cost of the cleanup.

Tumbling down

The cupola was the last part to fall, as a bulldozer demolished the Mildred Rogers School on Thursday. The school, built in the late 1930's, was named for a teacher who died in the Coconut Grove fire of 1942. Among those watching the demolition were several people who went to school in the building. It had most recently been used as rehearsal space for the Wilmington Spotlighters, who had hopes of renovating the building into a small theater. The group even changed its name to the Silver Lake Spotlighters, to match the location of the school. But an arsonist set fire to the school a year and a half ago.

Funding for the Fourth a volunteer effort

The Fourth of July Committee is in full swing, this week, presenting the people of Wilmington with a six day festival for holiday fun. It started Monday, July 2 and it will end on Saturday, July 9.

That fun, by a town committee, is at no cost to the taxpayers of Wilmington. Day after day, event after event, it is a self supporting, or nearly so, effort.

Jack Cushing, the chairman, jokes that he takes two vacations a year. The first is during the Memorial Day weekend. That is so he and his family can get to know each other. The second is during the week in which July 4th occurs. That holiday is so that he can be busy with all the things that have to be done to make the holiday one that everyone will remember.

The Fourth of July Committee has the use of the old school house (1833) and former public library facing Wilmington Common.

The Town of Wilmington pays the light bill and that's all. It is only fair. There are other functions which take place in that headquarters, like, for instance, meetings of many non-profit community organizations — and even the police association. By paying the light bills, the town acknowledges a part of the service performed.

The committee pays for the fuel oil, the telephone bills, etc. The building is on lease from the town to the committee. There is no appropriation from the town, to sustain the committee.

Nineteen eighty-four did not look good for the Fourth of July Committee, back at the end of April. There was no money coming.

The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, and the Rotary Club of Wilmington got together. A luncheon, for their members, with the bill not $6 but $12.

Everyone was to attend. It would be in the K of C Hall. The Fourth of July Committee would be the caterers.

At the end of the luncheon on May 9, the committee figured it was $1500 to the good. A few days later, when the total costs and receipts were known that

That nest egg started the Fourth of July Committee for the 1984 season. Everyone has been working hard, to give a good program and make it self supporting.

Many of the events are money makers. The biggest money maker, is the carnival. Many clubs are having suppers, and from those suppers donations go to the committee. The Minutemen are having a breakfast. It all adds up.

The Committee is selling shirts and other things. Money is donated. Money comes from other sources.

And Wilmington has a full fledged six day holiday with two nights of fireworks!

Chamber to present findings on electric study

For many months, the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, with involvement of several of its major industrial member companies, has been studying the electrical costs and rate hikes levied by Wilmington's power provider, Reading Municipal Light Company.

At a recent meeting of these major employers, Chamber executives, Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski and selectmen Robert Cain and Rocco DePasquale, it was decided that the Chamber would bring its preliminary findings to the entire board of selectmen at its July 16 meeting in the hope of getting the selectmen's cooperation and participation for proceeding further.

These findings suggest that the Seabrook project will impact heavily on all Wilmington rate payers, industrial and residential. At present, Wilmington provides more than 60 percent of Reading Light's income, but has no representation on the Reading Municipal Light Board.

With agreement by the town and the business community, through the Chamber of Commerce, the immediate course of action would be to investigate what impact the Seabrook project will have on future electrical rates in the town of Wilmington; what legislative action holds Wilmington to the Reading Municipal Light Department and whether it would be feasible to explore ways to have Wilmington gain representation on the Reading Municipal Light Board.

Fleming chosen principal

Wilmington High School finally has a principal. The school committee voted last Wednesday night to hire Paul Fleming, assistant principal of Plymouth - Carver Regional High School.

Fleming will fill the position vacated 16 months ago by Dr.

George Eisenberg. Attempts to appoint a new principal last summer resulted in a deadlock between the superintendent and the school committee.

Because of that deadlock, Richard DeRosa was appointed acting principal. He served in that post during the school year. Fleming's appointment leaves DeRosa in a void, unsure of his employment status. Prior to his appointment of acting principal, he had been science director for the school system.

CLOCK TOCK

by
THE CLOCKFOLK OF NEW ENGLAND
Wilmington

It is well known that materials expand when subject to heat and contract when exposed to cold. This affects all pendulum clocks slightly. A clock which has a pendulum consisting of a steel rod will expand in length and become slower by about two and one-half seconds a day for each 10 degree rise in temperature. Of course the clock will run faster if the pendulum is subject to cold because its rod would contract, making the pendulum shorter. High grade clocks often are equipped with specially made pendulums to offset or compensate for expansion and contraction.

Inventions to compensate such variations were developed in England as early as the 1720's. One such invention used a jar of mercury swinging to and fro at the bottom of the pendulum. As the steel rod expanded downward, lengthening the pendulum, the mercury expanded upward in a reliable counter-action. Around 1900, a metal alloy of nickel and iron, called invar, was invented by a Frenchman named Guillaume. Its expansion at different temperatures is negligible and corrects the effect of temperature changes on clocks.

Directorship of Tewksbury Pop Warner program changes hands

Tewksbury's recreation commission voted recently to appoint Robert Lombardi to replace Michael Whelton as director of the nationally acclaimed Tewksbury Pop Warner Program.

The 3-1 vote, with one member absent and Chairman Richard Barreille the lone dissenter, came during a Monday, June 25 meeting of the five member board.

According to Recreation Commissioner Edward Blades, Whelton, who has directed the program for the last ten years, was removed because the majority of the board felt he was doing "nothing this year to get Pop Warner off the ground" and ready for the start of the football season in late August.

Blades also noted that his decision to remove Whelton as director had nothing to do with allegations that Whelton failed to pay bills he incurred in the name of the program on time. Saying that those charges have not been proven to be fact, Blades also noted that his vote to replace Whelton as director was "nothing personal."

Although Whelton has been removed from his positions as an appointed town recreation commissioner and Pop Warner Director, he apparently still serves as president of the Pop Warner Football Conference of Eastern Mass.

Attempts to reach other recreation commissioners before press deadline were unsuccessful.

Lombardi will now serve a dual function in the local program. He will serve as administrative director and also as president of a board of directors that will oversee the operation of the program.

Recent registration drives conducted by an interim board saw over 200 youths sign up to participate in a football program.

However, those registration drives were held under the name of Tewksbury Youth Football because of confusion over the status of a charter that allows the town to operate under the Pop Warner banner.

The charter gives the town a franchise in the Pop Warner league, allows the town to use the Pop Warner name, play other Pop Warner teams from surrounding towns in the Merrimack Valley, and play for Pop Warner championships at several different levels.

The Pop Warner program also issues special awards for players who achieve both scholastic and athletic goals and also has a special division for cheerleading.

George Howard of the EMass.

Conference board announced last May that the charter was being suspended for one year, or until the town could prove that alleged "political influence or interference" has been removed from the program. That announcement was made when an EMass conference audit committee released the results of an audit of local program financial statements that declared Whelton had done nothing wrong in his financial dealings on behalf of the program.

That suspension notice said that if two recommendations were followed, then a charter reinstatement hearing could be requested. The first recommendation asked that the relationship between the Tewksbury Pop Warner organization and the town be dissolved and, the other called for the organization of a separate Pop Warner Booster club board of directors.

The parents of children in the program quickly asked for a reinstatement hearing after forming an interim board of directors that was created for the sole purpose of getting the charter back and forming a separate booster organization. But, a reinstatement hearing has yet to be held.

However, it is unclear whether the charter was really suspended. Town Counsel Charles Zaroulis told selectmen several weeks ago that national Pop Warner headquarters in Philadelphia advised him during a telephone conversation that the charter could not be suspended until a hearing has been held. It is also unclear whether a hearing to suspend the charter was held.

Letters from national headquarters confirming the content of the phone conversation were recently received by selectmen, according to Selectman Bill Hallisey.

"The way Pop Warner rules are written, nothing has been done to remove that charter," said Hallisey.

Hallisey also noted that a letter handed to selectmen announcing the suspension was never signed by the EMass board.

However, the recreation commission, at the suggestion of Barreille, is attempting to schedule a meeting with the EMass board to discuss the status of the charter and to iron out any differences between the two parties.

"That (meeting with EMass) is what we're hoping will come about," said Blades. "We just have to give Mr. Barreille a chance to get a meeting going," he said before adding, "It's very important we have this meeting."

The EMass board apparently also has to approve the selection of Lombardi as director of the local program.

Blades feels, however, that

Lombardi is a good selection as director. "Mr. Lombardi is about the squarest shooter I've ever met," Blades said. "What he's got in mind is the kids," he added.

Letters to the editor

Dear Larz and God:

Please don't stop the world. I'm having so much fun. I've got so much to do and I've only just begun.

Took a tour of my precious Wilmington one fine sunny day, through the industrial areas I struggled to make my way.

Some of the buildings are pretty nice and others aren't that bad, then there are some that look pretty sad.

Down Ballardvale Street by Compugraphic, where once stood Bob Evans' farm, brought back nostalgic memories long past. Traveled inch by inch there were so many trucks and cars couldn't move very fast.

Some of the landscaping on the industrial sites was beautiful, much to my surprise. The Chamber of Commerce should offer a best landscaping prize.

I've written to the Chamber of Commerce throughout the nation, in search of information about a vacation.

You'd think the Chamber of Commerce would encourage preserving the historical nostalgia of our town, encouraging tourists and proudly guide them around.

Instead the Chamber chooses to build an Industrial City in my precious town, now there's not very much nostalgia left to be found.

On Eames Street the traffic is absolutely unbelievable, and oh, what a smell of pollution! don't think it's ever possible to find a solution.

Then down the Main Drag, through the Center of my precious Wilmington, inch by inch I very slowly made my way, have to admit some of those new office buildings are very pretty I must say.

Sure do like the colonial architectural design, now if only our magic state planners could find a solution to our steadily increasing traffic problems, everything would be just fine.

The more and more development through the center of our town, the more and more traffic problems we'll all find.

Now I'm not against progress, I just think we should know when to stop. Police Chief Stewart isn't going to be able to handle all the traffic problems with only four more traffic cops.

If only the chief could find a Jeannie who could blink her eyes, making the traffic problems disappear it would be a pleasant surprise.

Soon work shall begin on Route 129 and 38, if you all don't come to meetings it will soon be too late! Unfortunately so very many businesses will be hurt by the changes through the center of our town, shame on all ye voters, so few at meetings were to be found.

Let's all get together and have a gigantic rally, changing the name of the center of my precious Wilmington (even after all of the so called improvements are done) to Suicide Alley.

Any helpful suggestions would be appreciated. George.

God Bless Y'all
Sonja Maria Carlson

The salutation on the letter is somewhat of an inside joke. Mrs. Carlson was responding to a letter by George Webster in last week's Town Crier. Last year, the Town Crier received a letter to the editor from God, with a blue thumbprint, submitted by George Webster, acting secretary.

Larz

Dear Larz:
It is ironic that Mr. Webster can down God and country and in the same breath exalt Thoreau.

Thoreau was an educated moron and one of the forerunners of our welfare society.

If Thoreau were alive today he would be on welfare. He most certainly would not have worked enough to be on unemployment.

Diane Fielding

Dear Larz,

There is a more important question to be answered this summer than "Where's the beef?" It's "Where's the Pea Spoon?"

I staked a claim on that sucker several weeks ago at your office. Let's stop messing around with junk like re-routing 129, politicians, high school oil tanks and car dealers' ice rinks and get to important business like mythical pea spoons!

You gotta get your priorities straight!

Bill MacKinnon

The big question for the Town Crier has been "Where's the winner?" If you will hold still long enough to get your picture taken, then you can have your mythical pea spoon. And by the way, they're going to pave your pea patch when they build Route 129.

Kerri go-round

The merry-go-round remains one of the backbones of the carnival. Kerri French was at the carnival in Wilmington on Monday night, with her great-grandfather Jim Maher. The carnival will be in the high school parking lot all week, in conjunction with the Fourth of July celebration.

Open houses for Abundant Life Christian School

The Abundant Life Christian School, 17 Boutwell St., Wilmington, will hold two open houses for interested families on July 30 and August 11. The July 30 open house will be from 7 to 9 p.m. The August 11th open house will be from 10 a.m. to noon.

Abundant Life is a Christian grade school offering classes for kindergarten through grade nine. Alpha-Omega curriculum is used which integrates Christian values and principles throughout five major subject areas of Bible, language, arts, science, mathematics and social studies. It is a personalized curriculum, allowing for developmental differences between children.

Abundant Life is a ministry of the First Baptist Church, but is non-sectarian in its presentation of Christian truth, emphasizing values and Biblical teachings held in common among Christians. It was established to provide an educational alternative for Christian parents who are concerned about the moral and spiritual development of their children as well as their instruction in the academic disciplines.

Tewksbury selectmen adopt summer meeting schedule

Selectmen voted 3-2 last week to go on a summer schedule for the months of July and August. The June 25 vote, with Chairman Paul Sullivan and Selectman Bill Hallisey opposed, was the last in a series of attempts by Selectman Charlie Coldwell to get the board to go along with a summer schedule.

At Coldwell's suggestion, the board meetings will remain on Tuesdays, but will be limited to July 10, 24 and 31 and August 14 and 28. The regular weekly meeting schedule will go back into effect in September.

The measure was supported by Selectmen Tom Girard, Brian Sheehan and Coldwell.

Summer activities at Tewksbury's Patten Library

A summer of activities and programs for young people has been planned at Tewksbury's Patten Public Library. Assistant Director, Mrs. Moore, has coordinated the program which includes story hours for pre-school children, weekly films, a summer reading club, special entertainment, and craft programs.

Beginning July 12, story hours will be held every Thursday morning for six weeks at 10:15 a.m. Pre-registration will be held Friday, July 6 at 10 a.m.

On Thursday afternoons at 2:30, films will be shown for children seven and older. These movies, lasting between one and two hours, will be held for eight weeks beginning July 12. The first feature will be "Pipi Goes on Board" which runs for 90 minutes.

The summer reading program, "The Doublescoop Reading Club," which encourages children to read and "get the scoop" from books, is offered to children in grades two through six. Also, there will be a "Read to me" club for children in kindergarten and grade one. Registration for these reading clubs began on Monday, July 2. In addition, special entertainment and craft programs will be held on Tuesday afternoons at 2 p.m. beginning July 10. A list of entertainers and craft programs is available at the library.

For further information on any of these activities, contact Mrs. Moore at the library, 851-6071.

Students attend seminar at Annapolis

Three Wilmington students recently attended an engineering - science seminar and workshop at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland. James McFayden and Brian Wetzler, students at Wilmington High School and Stephen Revelas a student at Philips Exeter Academy in Exeter, N.H. were among only 600 students selected nation wide to attend this annual event based on college board examinations and outstanding academic achievements.

During the week long seminar the students were housed in famous Bancroft Hall and had extensive use of the many facilities at the Naval Academy. They attended classes in such disciplines as aerospace engineering, computer technology, naval architecture and oceanography and were introduced to Navy and academy traditions. They also participated in various sports activities and had an opportunity to visit the historic city of Annapolis.

Each of the students was awarded a certificate of achievement by the superintendent of the Naval Academy in recognition of completing the seminar.

Michael Field, accident victim

Michael W. Field, 22 of Tewksbury died Saturday night at the Wilmington Regional Health Center, as the result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident Saturday night on Hopkins Street, Wilmington.

He was born September 29, 1961, son of Roger S. and M. Ciril (Otto) Field of Tewksbury and was a life long resident of the town. He was a 1979 graduate of Austin Prep High School in Reading and was currently a part time student at the University of Lowell.

He was employed by Wang as an engineering research aide at the Parkwood Plant in Lowell and was a communicant of St. William's Church.

Michael was engaged to be married in September to Debra Bezanson of Tewksbury.

Besides his parents he is survived by four brothers, Roger W. (Bill) Field of Lowell; Thomas F. Field and John F. (Jack) Field, both of Tewksbury and Edward A. Field of Billerica, also many aunts, uncles, nephews and nieces.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 9 o'clock from the Tewksbury Funeral Home, followed by a funeral mass at 10:00 at St. William's Church. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, North Tewksbury.

Teena Palmer Arlin died in California

Olive Ernestine (Teena) Palmer Arlin died in San Marcos, California on June 13.

Born in Medford, Mass. on February 3, 1915, she lived in Wilmington through her school years. After graduating from Wilmington High School in 1933 she worked at the Wilmington Pumping Station until she married and moved to Detroit, Michigan where she lived until moving to California in 1960.

She is survived by her husband Max Arlin and two daughters, Diane (Mrs. Lee) Baker and Francine (Mrs. Donald) Starchman; three grandchildren, all of California; two brothers, Ivan E. Palmer of Wilmington and Guilford M. (Bud) Palmer of Raymond, N.H. and one sister Priscilla R.W. (Pattie) Lynch of Wilmington.

Teena was home for her 50th class reunion last summer, enjoying a very nice visit with classmates, family and friends.

Helen Pappas was 76

A funeral service for Helen (Parevoliotis) Pappas, 76, of Tewksbury, who with her late husband established and operated the Paradise Do-Nut Co., Tewksbury, was held Friday, June 29 at 11 a.m. in the Hellenic Orthodox Church of the Holy Trinity, Lowell.

She died Tuesday at St. John's Hospital following a brief illness.

Mrs. Pappas was born in Lowell and educated there. She and her husband, the late Charles Pappas, founded their donut company in 1950, which remains an on-going family business.

Formerly of Lowell, she moved to Tewksbury in 1947. She was active in business, civic and fraternal organizations in Lowell and Tewksbury and was well known in Greek-American communities there for her charitable contributions.

She was a member of the Hellenic Church of the Holy Trinity, Lowell, the Ladies Philoptochos Society and the Hellenic Women's Benevolent Association of the Hellenic Home for the Aged.

Mrs. Pappas is survived by seven daughters, Flossie Dokos of Lowell, Agnes Sager of Dracut, Priscilla Harmon of Eliot, Maine, Cynthia Asadoorian of Methuen, Rita Papaconstantinou of Brant Rock, and Bessie Shlensky and Patricia Pappas both of Tewksbury; three sons, Vasilios Papaconstantinou and Peter and Stephen Pappas all of Tewksbury; two brothers, Nicholas Parevoliotis of Haverhill and Peter Parevoliotis of California; two sisters, Ethel Schrow and Lefty Ames, both of Lowell and 17 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Edson Cemetery, Lowell. Arrangements were under the direction of the Pappas Funeral Home, Lowell.

Tigers grab share of first, 5-3

Major League

Tigers 5 Yankees 3

In a well played, hard fought game, the Tigers came from behind to defeat a fine Yankee team for a share of first place.

'Lamar' McGrath smashed a bases loaded double to drive in three runs, while Matt Lopez had a hit and scored an insurance run with some heads-up base running.

Joe Piazza (two), Chris Ward, Andy Parr and Brian MacD Donald had hits, with Mike Gaglione and Kevin Lewis helping the rally with walks. Defensively, Tom Bryant made a tough catch in leftfield and Joe McFadyen caught a line drive at secondbase to further the cause.

Andy Parr pitched well again, recording 13 strikeouts. Other defensive and offensive contributions came from George and Jerry Driscoll, Shawn Hartwell, Scott Brennan and J. Pilcher.

For the Yankees, Greg Smith and Mark Mercuri had two hits each and Jimmy Medeiros made a fine catch in leftfield. George Melitese made two good catches in centerfield to support some fine pitching by Eric Engdahl.

White Sox 9 A's 8

Eric Maciejewski's strong relief pitching and three hits led the White Sox over the battling A's. Scott Tuxbury had four hits, while Rocky Scarbo, Bobby Anderson, Jay Oliver and Buzz Flynn had timely hits.

Dave Woodbury and Paul Gargon had two hits for the A's. Bobby Cappachetti and Jason Bailey also chipped in with clutch hits.

White Sox 11 Indians 2

Sean DeMaggio and Mark Lee (one-hitter) combined to pitch the White Sox to their 10th victory in their last 11 games. Todd Briscois got some timely hits for the White Sox.

Brian Harris got the lone Indian hit. Darren Nollette, Kevin Ferrari and Jeff Bento made three super defensive plays for the Indians.

Yankees 10 Red Sox 5

Gregg Smith went all the way in this Yankees' upset win over the Red Sox. Smith allowed five hits, struck out 13 and walked four. He also led the offense with two singles and a three run homer over the centerfield fence. Ryan Churchill went 2-2 with a single and a double. Mike Sullivan, Mark Mercuri and Chris McMillan also had hits. Good defense was turned in by Gregg Smith, Frank Center, Pat Rogers and Mark Mercuri.

For the Red Sox, Eric Pote, Steven Murray and Mark McNamara all had one double apiece. Good defense was offered by Red Sox' Steven Murray, in leftfield and Mike O'Brien at secondbase. Matt Callahan pitched two solid innings in the losing cause.

Yankees 21 Indians 16

Jim Medeiros pitched three good innings for the Yankees. Medeiros also had two singles. Offense came from Gregg Smith with a single and a double; Chris McMillan with two singles and a walk; Frank Cenca with three singles; Chris Linsky with a double and Mike Sullivan with a single and a walk. The Yankees got good defense from catcher Frank Cenca.

Jeff Bento had two singles and a double for the Indians. Chris Conley also had three hits, while Donahue had two singles. Bento also played well at shortstop.

Twins 15 Orioles 4

The Twins ended their season on a winning note led by numerous defensive gems. Especially good games by Peter Damore at secondbase and Jimmy Ware at third. Also playing well were Paul Tarantino, Jimmy Russo, Jamie Robichaud and Joey Mahoney. Leading the Twins' offense were David DiCenso with three hits and Robichaud with three hits. Jason Cardwell rapped two hits while Tarantino and Ware had one each. Billy Finnerty, John Ciarmaglia, Jason Stevenson, Todd Bailey, Ryan Collins and Chris Cassinello all played well.

Dave DiCenso went the distance, allowing only two hits. The Orioles were led offensively by Mark Bobek and Danny Santos. Mike Morris pitched four strong innings in relief.

Orioles 10 Twins 2

The Orioles rolled behind the pitching of Danny Santos (two hits, four strikeouts) and Eric Richards (two hits, five strikeouts). Hits by Mark Bobek, Danny Santos, Derek Stokes and Paul Wheeler. Good defensive plays by Mark Bobek, Mike Morris and Danny Herrick.

For the Twins, excellent relief pitching came from Dave DeCenso (one hit, six strikeouts). Defensive plays by Jason Stevenson, Dave DeCenso and big hits of Jimmy Robichaud (3-3) and Todd Bailey helped the losing team.

Orioles 4 A's 3

Danny Santos and Eric Richards split 10 strikeouts, with timely hits by Derek Stokes, Frank Murray, Pat Trio, Eric Richards, Paul Wheeler and good defense by Derek Stokes and Robbie McDonald. Mike Ruppucci eluded a run-down to score the winning run. For the A's, good hitting by Dave Woodbury, Brett Hicks, Lawton and Bailey. The excellent defensive plays of Dave Woodbury kept the A's in the game. Tip of the hat to Lawton of the A's who remained in the game after being hit by a pitch in the first inning.

Minors Leagues

Pirates 10 Mets 5

The Pirates were led offensively by the hot bats of Bryant Falzone, Dave Oatis, Jim and Greg Maiella, Shawn Perreault, Mike Hawley and capped off by Joe Lessard's grand slam. Greg Maiella and Dave Oatis kept many of the Mets high powered hitters off the bases with some effective hurling.

The Mets were helped out by the hitting of Brian Kinnear and Tim Herson, along with some stout defense by Jim Palman, Steve Greco and Daryl Grant. Steve Pepe made his pitching debut a success by holding the Pirates at bay during the last inning.

Cardinals 14 Braves 6

The Cardinals attack was led by Steve McGlinchey, John Gerrior and Tom Ducey, all contributing three hits each. Matt McManus hit a grand slam home run. Tom Ducey pitched three shutout innings for the Cardinals.

Mark Tobey made his first appearance of the year for the Braves after recuperating from a broken leg. He chipped in with a base on balls and a double. John Lynch had two hits for the Braves. Christian Armata and Anthony Bonnarigo pitched strong games.

Giants 23 Mets 3

Pitching for the Giants was Kelly Olson and Brian Oxman. Good hitting came from Kenny Blower and Raymond Metcalfe. For the Mets, good pitching came from Darry Grant, while hitting was contributed by Steven Greco and Jimmy Palman.

Astros 16 Pirates 6

Homeruns came from M. Ventre, B. Fleming and a triple from C. Nolan. Good pitching was turned in by B. Fleming. Hitters for the Pirates were Howie Gilhouly, Bruant Falzone and Dave Oatis. They were accompanied by the fine pitching of Jonathan Wright.

Braves 10 Giants 5

The Giants' defense was led by Bobby Palazzi, Donald Wheeler and Jim DeBenadeto. The Braves' hitting was supplied by a timely triple from Chris Johnson and a single by Jackie Sullivan. The pitching combo of Anthony Bonarigo and Danny Godin kept the Braves in the game, while the relief pitching of Christian Armata pulled out the win.

Cardinals 16 Reds 16

Farm League

Mariners 11 Brewers 7

For the Mariners, good pitching came from Robbie Smith and Domenic Danielli. Two homeruns by Robbie Smith, and good hitting from John Linsky. Fine fielding plays were turned in by Brendan Rogers, Tommy Zaya, David Fleming and Anthony DiGiovanni. The Brewers got good pitching and hitting from Bobby Beals and G. Lill. C. Waterhouse and M. Calandrello also had some timely hits.

Phillies 24 Cubs 9

The Phillies' first victory was paced by a 25 hit attack led by E.J. Merrill with four; Derek O'Sullivan with three; David Lanzillo with three; Dan Mullen with three; Doug Lanzillo with four; Mike Patterson with three; Rick Blizzard with two; Mark Vitale with two and Scott Wheeler with a singleton. A nifty play at secondbase was turned in by Scott Nolan.

Rangers 11 Mariners 3

The Rangers beat the Mariners thanks to two grand slam homeruns by Robbie

THANK YOU, AMERICA.

Mr. John Mattioli, Chrysler Regional Manager, presents a plaque to Fred F. Cain, Jr. recognizing Fred F. Cain, Jr. as Founding Sponsor of the Statue of Liberty/Ellis Island Foundation.

When we needed you, you were there. You helped build The New Chrysler Corporation and kept us in business in the New England area. Now we're doing our part, by joining the fight to save the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island. Both are in a grave state of disrepair. Without immediate and extensive repairs, we may lose these treasured symbols of hope and freedom forever. As a Founding Sponsor, Fred F. Cain, Jr. has made a contribution to the restoration of these historic landmarks. Won't you join us in this truly patriotic effort? Send your tax-deductible contribution to: Liberty, 2751 E. Youngsters enjoy T-ball field day

The Tewksbury T-ball League had a field day at the East Street field Sunday, July 1. The children were treated to hot dogs, popcorn and drinks. Races, games and a T-ball game were enjoyed by all. This was Tewksbury's first season of T-ball and was quite successful.

Eight teams of 18 players each were fielded. A special thanks to the managers: Tom DiRocco, Ralph Harriman, Red Sox; Kevin Bradlee, Kevin Downey, Angels; Marilyn Allen, Boston Roberson, White Sox; Tony Solis, Indians; Denis Hogan, Frank Ferrelli, Astros; Jerry O'Neill, Yankees; Ed Olsen, Orioles; Bill Perrin, Tigers.

To all the seven and eight-year-olds from T-ball, watch for Minor League registration in late August.

Tewksbury Nationals top Americans, 7-3

The National All-Stars scored three runs in the first inning and three more in the fifth, as 12 walks helped pave the way to a 7-2 victory over the American League stars in the recent Tewksbury Little League Intermediate All-Star game.

Rich Howard was the defensive star for the winners, throwing out two runners at the plate and one at secondbase.

Bill Donahue (three innings, five K's) and J. Waldron combined to pitch the Nationals to the victory, allowing just six hits over the seven inning distance.

The National Stars plated three runs in the first when Jim Avery and Rob Chaisson walked and each stole a base before Donahue drove them both home with a solid single.

The eventual winners stretched their lead in the fifth behind Ron Maddox' two-run single.

The manager of the National All-Stars was Lou Chaisson, assisted by coaches Steve Delaney and Dick Campbell. The American All-Stars were managed by Arthur Peters. His coaches were Don Stoddard and Paul Bailey.

Back in the saddle again

Officer Jim Cuoco was a sight for sore eyes when he emerged from the woods in Woburn, while searching for four stolen Honda ATC vehicles last Saturday. Off. Cuoco was using another ATC in the search when he found one on a hill near the Burlington reservoir. He was taken to the Regional Health Center, treated and released. The vehicles were stolen from the U-Haul store on Main Street on the night of Sat., June 23. Police arrested six young men from Woburn for the theft.

Wilmington police news

Daniel Croft of 72 Main Street was arrested last Friday by Officer David McCue, by virtue of a capias warrant, issued by the Lowell Court for the Chelmsford Police Department. Croft was turned over to the Chelmsford Department.

Kevin McNeil, 24, of 372 Woburn St., Wilmington was arrested by Officer McCue and charged with operating a motorcycle while under the influence of alcohol. McCue made the arrest after investigating an accident involving the motorcycle and a delivery van, which happened on Concord Street at Fordham Road Friday evening. McNeil was bailed for a Monday court appearance.

The discovery of a stolen three wheel recreation vehicle in Woburn last Saturday morning led to the arrest of six Woburn youths. Three such vehicles had been stolen last week from the U-Haul garage on Main Street. Officer Jim Cuoco, Sgt. Rooney, an Inspector Ritchie arrested Warren Trask, 17, of Webster Avenue, Douglas Larson, 17, of 72 Pearl Street and George Cutting, 17, of 120 Bedford Road, all of Woburn. Also arrested were three juveniles. All were charged with receiving stolen property, and some were charged with having broken into the U-Haul Shop.

Michael E. Field, 22, of 663 Chandler St., Tewksbury died Monday evening of injuries sustained in an accident on Hopkins Street, Wilmington. Also injured were William Eldredge, 18, of 23 Hopkins St. and Christina Cristoe, of 4 Wilton Dr. Both were transported to the Choate Hospital in Woburn where they were treated and released.

The accident occurred when the Field vehicle attempted to pass another car on Hopkins Street. Field lost control, striking Eldredge's vehicle and then striking a utility pole.

Two women began CPR on the victim at the scene of the accident. The investigating officers have commended Ellen Corson of 22 Hopkins St., a registered nurse, who lives near the scene of the accident and Sheila McDonough of 24 Jefferson St., Billerica, an Army medic. They were quick and professional and were at work on the victim before the arrival of emergency personnel.

Field was taken to the Regional Health Center in Wilmington where he succumbed to his injuries.

Good Neighbor Award No. 2 goes to Paul Morasco of 43 Columbia St., Wilmington.

A pocketbook, complete with $230 in cash, credit cards and blank checks was lost by an Arizona woman on Route 125, near Route 93, Friday morning. The travelers got all the way to Concord, N.H. before they discovered their loss.

The lady was quite surprised to learn that the pocketbook had been turned over to the Wilmington Police Department, and everything was intact. The lady is expressing her thanks publicly.

Fireworks complaints are in the news just now. During the past week the Wilmington police have had 13 complaints.

There were five accidents, 25 alarms, eight arrests, two cases of assault and battery, and one of assisting another department during the past week. The police were called for domestic problems 10 times. There was one report of break and entry. There were 13 reports of disturbances.

Medical assistance was given in three instances, and five persons were taken into protective custody.

One sex crime was reported. Two motor vehicles were reported stolen, and a motor vehicle, stolen, was recovered. There were two cases of threats, and three cases of suspicious activity reported.

Trespassing complaints numbered one, traffic complaints four, vandalism cases were five, and five complaints were made about trailbikes.

A magician, an owl and Mother Goose were part of Curriculum Enrichment Series

The Wilmington Woburn Street School Parent Advisory Council (P.A.C.) concluded its 1983-84 Curriculum Enrichment Series with a program of magic and music by magician Peter O'Malley during the annual Festival of Fun at school closing time in June.

During this school year P.A.C. has been able to provide such outstanding presentations as Reading's own Judith O'Hare and her "Memories of a Chinese Grandmother" — a richly visual puppetry creation introducing children to oriental culture. Fifth grade students participated in a morning workshop and then became part of a shimmering 15 foot dragon. They manipulated both shadow puppets and large, colorful silk clad rod puppets becoming part of the show itself, as it was presented to their 603 fellow pupils.

Kindergartners found extra amusement in the familiar chants, circle games and a fairy tale as "Mother Goose" herself (Marcia Perlmutter) stepped about among them. Second graders are still musing as to where "Mr. Ingalls" parked his buckboard on Woburn Street as "Caroline Ingalls" (Marcia Perlmutter) visited with them relating some of her most exciting prairie adventures.

Massachusetts Audubon Society arrived with its "Audubon Ark" introducing the first graders to "Otis," its travelling screech owl — encouraging respect and wonder for our native woodland creatures. Sixth graders participated in the "Everything You Ever Wanted to Know" program. Choosing the topic "Birds of Prey," they met, top hand, with a powerful hawk and an inquisitive owl.

If you won't go to the Aquarium, the Aquarium will come to you! New England Aquarium's outreach program arrived twice. Fourth graders had hands-on experiences with "sharks," feeling the thick skin, skeletal bones and teeth while increasing their factual knowledge of this predator of the oceans. Third graders gathered information about all those small creatures and remnants of creatures they might come across this summer along the New England coastline — Tidal Pool Experience.

The fifth graders gave undivided attention as they witnessed a fascinating "Physical Science Demonstration" provided by the Museum of Science.

Finally, through the generosity of storytellers George and Pam and "The Enchanted Story Tree," the school library was able to provide the magic of live storytelling set to music to a group of fourth graders.

This series has been made possible because of parents' enthusiasm and work for the annual Pumpkin Fair and other fund raising efforts throughout the year.

Whist party Monday

The first whist party of July will be held at the Drop-in Center Monday, July 9 beginning at 1:30 p.m. Many gifts used as prizes are donated by the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, for which the seniors are most grateful. Other prizes are supplied by the arts and crafts committee.

July social

The therapeutic social for July will be a bus trip to York Beach in Maine, Thursday July 19. Lunch will be the individual's responsibility. There are several good restaurants and shops in the area. Swimming will be available for those who enjoy the sport. Buses will leave the Center at 10:30 a.m., arriving at York Beach at 12:30 p.m.

Sign-up is in progress at the Drop-in Center. A $2.00 non refundable deposit will be required when registering to help defray the cost of the buses.

Exercise classes

Upon the request of many seniors taking part in the exercise classes, they will continue at the Center throughout the summer. Any senior wishing to keep in shape during July and August can join the classes held at the Center every Monday and Wednesday morning from 10 to 11. The center is air conditioned.

Hot lunch program

The summer hot lunch program began on July 2 at the West Intermediate School. The meals throughout the summer will be served at 11:45 a.m. Meals have to be ordered in advance by calling the Drop-in Center the day before planned participation. No phone calls the morning of the meal please.

Medicare facing bankruptcy

Every day the cost of medical care seems to be skyrocketing. According to newspapers Medicare Part A (hospital insurance trust fund) will be facing bankruptcy in 1989. To the elderly person this means more and more money will have

SUPERMAN!

By JIM ROUILLARD

For many Americans, the Fourth of July means firecrackers, parades, backyard barbecues — and maybe reflections on the splendors of Old Glory and what America means or is supposed to mean.

What better way then, to observe the nation's birthday than to visit with the archetype of American superheroes, Superman himself?

Who keeps an actual skeleton in his closet — pumps iron and works out for two hours every day at the crack of daylight — then breakfasts on a blend of fertile egg, ground seeds, and fresh-squeezed orange juice?

He has many names. Among them: Kal-El, visitor from a strange and distant planet, also known as the Man of Steel, Clark Kent, mild-mannered reporter, and of course, Superman.

Actually, he's Mayo Kaan, of Lynnfield's House of Health.

Like the ancestors of almost every living American, the fictional Superman was an immigrant to these shores, though he came from the planet Krypton, a little farther away than the woods of Tashkent, Uganda, or Yorkshire.

Still immensely strong at age 70, the real Superman, Mayo Kaan, is not an immigrant, but a native son, for he was born nearby, in what was once called Rumney Marsh, which we know today as the city named for an earlier American hero and super-patriot — Paul Revere.

Mayo, who hates being called Mr. Kaan because it makes him feel old, said he was working out in a gym at the Sidney Hill Health Club in the Statler Building in Boston in 1936 when he was spotted by the creators of the Superman comic strip, Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster, who asked him to pose for their brainchild.

By 1936, Mayo had brought his body to super proportions — but not by the easy means of his fictional counterpart, who had been born of super-parents with titanic powers. May said he built his powers on his own without help from supergenes.

Several years prior to that meeting in Boston, Mayo said he'd been paralyzed by a freak football accident, and the resulting two years spent on his back made him determine not only to walk again — but to bring his body to its highest peak.

Mayo's determination and the genesis of Superman seem to have occurred spontaneously and almost simultaneously. But it was in 1938 that "the Promethean fire was lighted," according to Raymond Stedman ("The Comic Book Heroes," from The Serials: Suspense and Drama by Instalment). "The June issue of Action Comics introduced a character who had been bouncing around the desks of comic editors for years. Rejected time after time because he seemed too fantastic, he was that strange visitor from another planet... Superman."

"America in the 30s was ripe for someone larger than life," Mayo said. "We were in the grip of a terrible depression. Perhaps some other country might have created Superman: maybe Australia, with what many feel is a macho culture, maybe South Africa, maybe some other country."

But some other country didn't. America did.

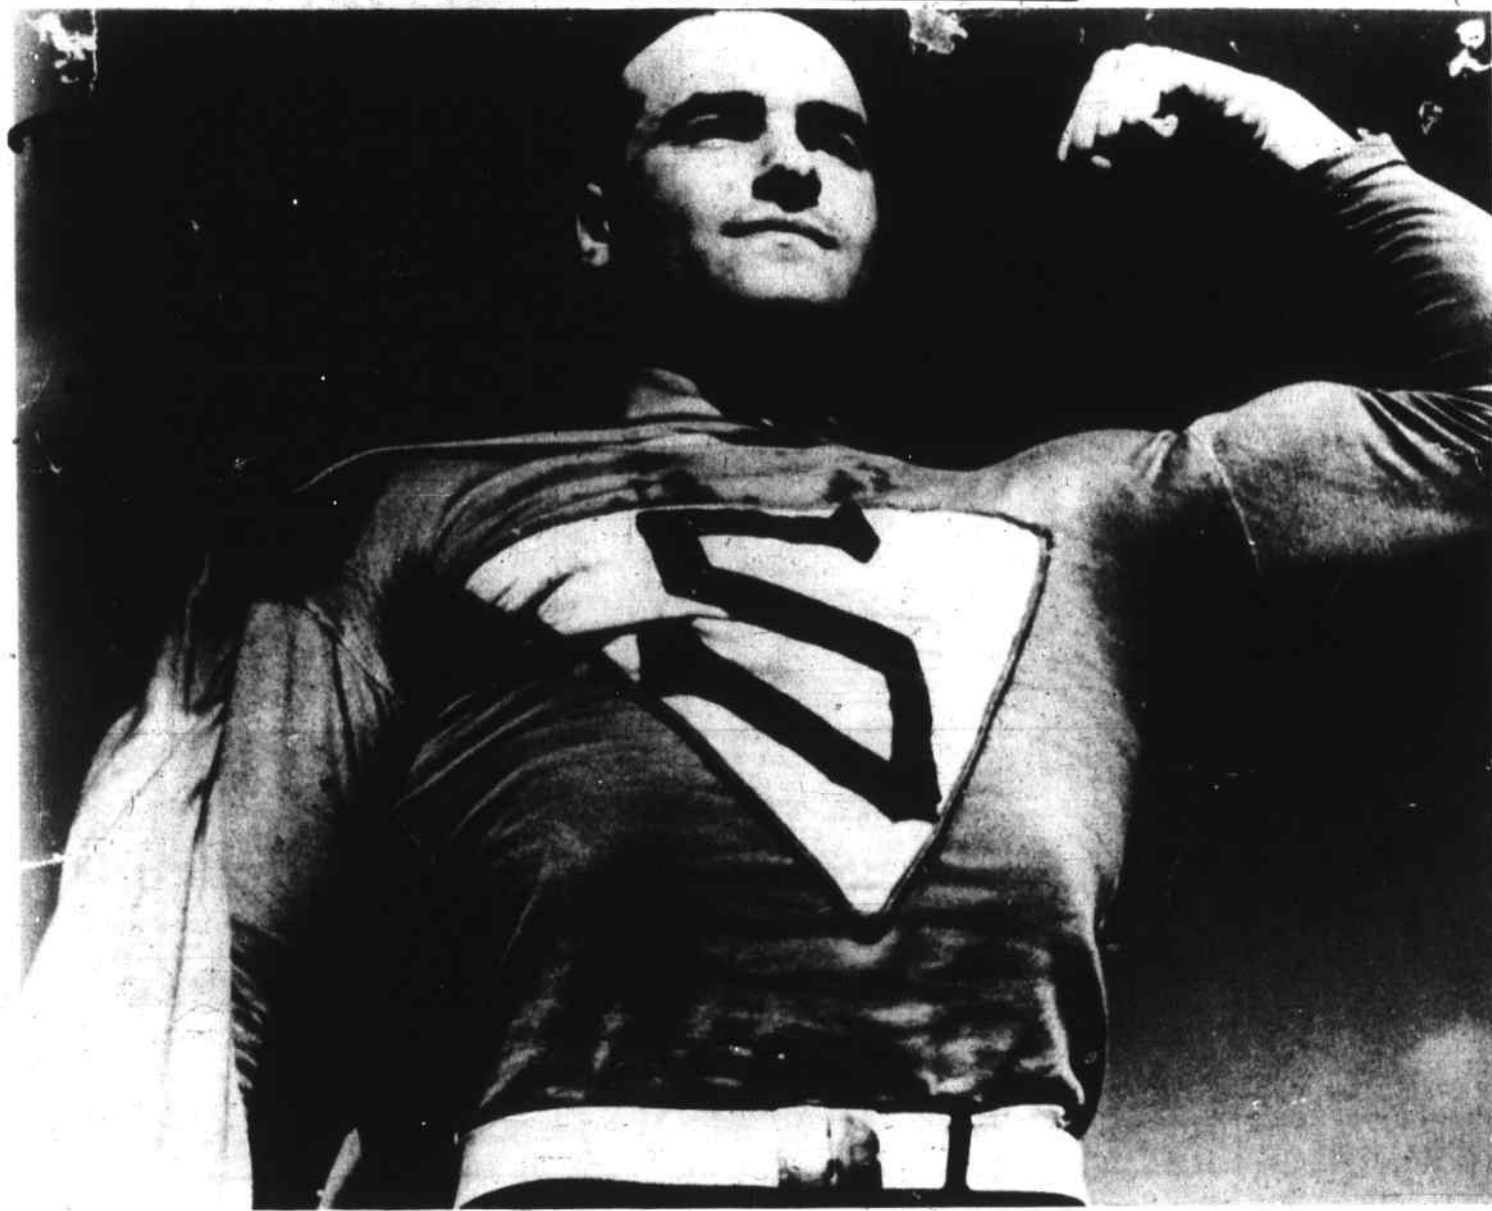

"And that seems to be America's genius," he said, agreeing with historians who maintain that America's peculiar gift is the ability to combine separate elements from other cultures into something distinct. Something like Superman.

"The comic book itself," wrote Michael Barrier and Martin Williams (A Smithsonian Book of Comic-Book Comics), "was the child of the newspaper comic strip, and the comic strip was born in the United States in the 19th century."

A reading of the first Superman comic to appear yields a light touch of humor which helped make the first decade of comic books the period which industry buffs consider the comics' golden age.

The humor which surfaces in the Superman comic book is even more evident in the anecdotes,

Offbeat tidbits of American history

FM TALK: If you're not in the mood to listen to that terrific remix of Bruce Springsteen's "Dancin' In the Dark," here are some offbeat tidbits of American history to mull over.

H.L. Mencken defined "puritanism" as "the haunting

fear that someone, somewhere, may be happy."

Boy George, the transvestite lead singer of the rock group Culture Club, is fortunate that he's practicing his talents these days and not three hundred years ago. In 1675, in New England, men were arrested for wearing silk clothes. Only the very well-to-do were permitted to wear silk. Come to think of it, with all the money this Boy George character has, he might have been allowed to walk around the streets of colonial New England dressed in any manner he wished.

Here's an item that's sure to make the next round of Trivial Pursuit: Mother Goose, of nursery rhyme fame, was a real person who lived during the early eighteenth century. Her nursery rhymes became popular accidentally; her son-in-law, who apparently didn't care for his mother-in-law too much, was a printer, and published her rhymes under the title "Songs for the Nursery; or, Mother Goose's Melodies for Children" as a means of embarrassing her. Instead of humiliating his mother-in-law, he ended up making her a celebrity, and his printing company went on to do quite well on the strength of the sales of her books.

Here's a tradition that took place during colonial America that isn't likely to make a comeback: It was popular for a while for women to marry in the nude or in their underwear. The reason was, if she did so, her husband would not be responsible for her prenuptial debts. Since marriages were not allowed to take place in churches around 1647 (Puritans believed that marriage was a secular institution, not a religious one), it was common for a marriage to take place at night, so that the bride would not have to be embarrassed by standing with no clothes on in front of a magistrate. It was reported that one woman actually got married from inside a closet in order to remain discreet.

Getting back to Boy George again, he may be unique for this time, but he is far from the first celebrity to use transvestism as a means of attracting attention. The governor of New York, from 1702 to 1708, whose name was

I have attended countless major league clinics during my 10 years of baseball including those of such superstars as Stan Musial, Roger Hornsby, Billy Williams, John Pesky, Phil Cavaretta and others. One of the most impressive of these is John Doherty whom I have had the pleasure of listening to and watching his demonstrations of baseball theories and exercises. While I have great respect for the above mentioned great hitters and instructors, John Doherty in my opinion does a better and more comprehensive job. John's theories are easily understood and accepted. His easy manner goes very well and his big strength is being able to demonstrate with such ease and professionalism.

Offbeat tidbits of American history

FM TALK: If you're not in the mood to listen to that terrific remix of Bruce Springsteen's "Dancin' in the Dark," here are some offbeat tidbits of American history to mull over.

H.L. Mencken defined "puritanism" as "the haunting

fear that someone, somewhere, may be happy."

Boy George, the transvestite lead singer of the rock group Culture Club, is fortunate that he's practicing his talents these days and not three hundred years ago. In 1675, in New England, men were arrested for wearing silk clothes. Only the very well-to-do were permitted to wear silk. Come to think of it, with all the money this Boy George character has, he might have been allowed to walk around the streets of colonial New England dressed in any manner he wished.

Here's an item that's sure to make the next round of Trivial Pursuit: Mother Goose, of nursery rhyme fame, was a real person who lived during the early eighteenth century. Her nursery rhymes became popular accidentally; her son-in-law, who apparently didn't care for his mother-in-law too much, was a printer, and published her rhymes under the title "Songs for the Nursery; or, Mother Goose's Melodies for Children" as a means of embarrassing her. Instead of humiliating his mother-in-law, he ended up making her a celebrity, and his printing company went on to do quite well on the strength of the sales of her books.

Here's a tradition that took

Getting back to Boy George again, he may be unique for this time, but he is far from the first celebrity to use transvestism as a means of attracting attention. The governor of New York, from 1702 to 1708, whose name was

I have attended countless major league clinics during my 10 years of baseball including those of such superstars as Stan Musky, Roger Hornsby, Billy Williams, John Pesky, Phil Cavaretta and others. One of the most impressive of these is John Doherty whom I have had the pleasure of attending to and watching his demonstrations of baseball theories and exercises. While I have great respect for the above mentioned great hitters and instructors, John Doherty in my opinion does a better and more comprehensive job. John's theories are easily understood and accepted. His easy manner goes very well and his big strength is being able to demonstrate with such ease and professionalism.

Holiday reminder Drunk driving will cost $2,288

Can you afford $2,288 plus loss of your driver's license plus a criminal record?

Those are the penalties if you're convicted of drunk driving under the Massachusetts law, as explained in a new free folder prepared by AAA Massachusetts in cooperation with the Governor's Office and the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau.

The handy folder describes in non-legal terms what will happen if you are arrested for suspected drunk driving, what the penalties will be if you are convicted, and how much it will cost. Also explained are the provisions involving vehicular homicide, drinking while driving, and driving after license revocation.

A person can be expected to pay a total of at least $2,288 if convicted on the first offense of drunk driving, according to the folder, which itemizes such charges as car towing and storage, bail magistrate's fee, cost for a lawyer, the fine, the insurance assessment, and loss of safe driver credits. In addition, there is the loss of license for one year, or the alternative of probation requiring attendance at a $480 alcohol education program and license suspension for 30 days.

"Massachusetts has a tough drunk driving law that I strongly support," Governor Michael S. Dukakis says in the folder introduction. "But a tough law alone is not enough. I have committed additional law enforcement personnel to enforcement on our roads and highways."

The folder emphasizes that the chances of drinking drivers being caught are greater than ever before. In addition to regular police patrols on the lookout for drunk drivers, Massachusetts has a state-wide program of drunk driving road blocks.

AAA Massachusetts worked closely with the Governor's Office and state officials in preparing the folder to present accurate and concise information. "Our purpose is not to intimidate motorists but to give a clear message to those who drink and drive about the legal consequences," said Gerald W. Connolly, General Manager of AAA Massachusetts.

Free copies of the folder may be obtained from AAA offices, the Governor's Office, and the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau.

North Shore's aura keeps home prices high in the area

By David Clark Scott
Staff writer of The Christian Science Monitor

When you get beyond the renovated brick factories of Lynn, up toward the Marblehead boutiques and beyond, those on the North Shore show a certain elevated-nose, poised-pinkie attitude about South Shore real estate. Comparisons are somewhat haughtily brushed aside.

"Well, we don't have the Southeast Expressway."

"I don't think they play polo on the South Shore, do they?"

Indeed. In the late 1800s, the wealthy Boston Brahmins moved here, settling in estates befitting their social stature. While many have moved on, their legacy is "a life style," explains Richard Carlson, president of Carlson Real Estate, the largest Realtor on the North Shore.

And that life style fetches higher home prices. "The average selling price is $93,000 — and rising," says Christine M. Todd, executive vice-president of the Greater Salem Board of Realtors. "But that takes in Lynn, with its entry-level $75,000 to 80,000 prices, as well as Swampscott at about $120,000," she adds. It doesn't include Manchester-by-the-Sea, where many homes are exclusive members of the $350,000-and-up club.

Shoppers for an upper-income home can find it along the coast and further from Boston, say Realtors. "Trade-up" homes (priced higher than $120,000) are most abundant in Marblehead, Swampscott, Topsfield, Rockport, Hamilton (home of the Myopia Hunt Club and the National Equestrian team), Wenham, and parts of Beverly. Inland, Lynnfield has a reputation of being a bedroom community of professional athletes. Homes in this rural community are generally pegged at $130,000 and up.

Coming down to earth a bit, houses in Stoneham run about $100,000, although there are "nine or 10" condominium developments where resale figures run $75,000 to $80,000, says Laura Hogan of Realty World Schmid Real Estate.

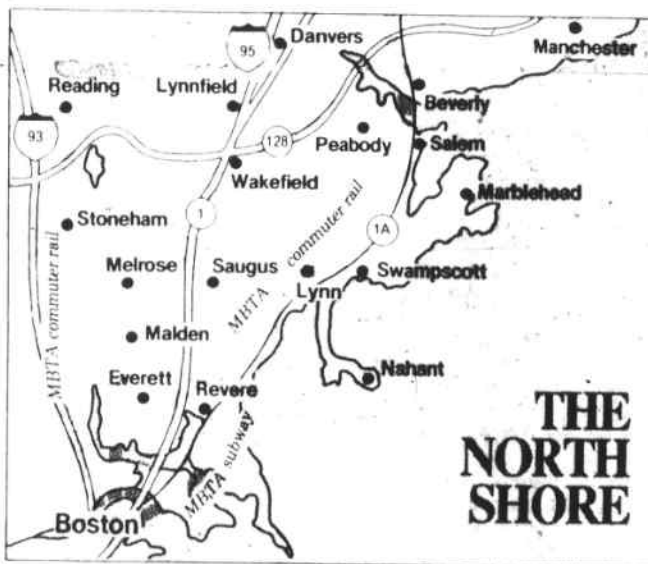

Stoneham lacks local public transportation, and that's one reason why nearby Melrose, Wakefield, and Reading have "slightly higher" prices, notes Mrs. Hogan. Unlike Stoneham, Melrose is strictly residential; it has no industry and is well endowed with Victorian homes. Peabody, Saugus, and Danvers also have an inventory of mid-priced houses.

In the market for a starter home? Brokers suggest Malden, Revere, Saugus, and Lynn. A single-family home in Lynn runs in the $70,000s and $80,000s. Two- and three-family houses are hitting the $80,000s and $90,000s, says Mazie Meedzan of A. James Lynch Inc. in Lynn.

Prices in Lynn have shot up, and it may be partly due to city revitalization plans, say Realtors. The downtown area was ravaged by a fire in November 1981, but now "Lynn is really on the rebound," says Realtor Christine Todd. The North Shore Community College will be moving into a new building downtown, and the foundation has just been poured for "Seaport Landing." This $20 million project includes a four-acre waterfront park, 105 luxury condominiums priced at $150,000, 130 slip spaces, and 30,000 feet of commercial space.

Next door in Revere, there may be more condo developers pacing the shoreline than sunbathers. "A lot of money is being pumped into the Revere Beach Parkway, which has been terribly undeveloped and neglected for years," says Mrs. Todd.

Developers have already unloaded a mad of money along the docks near downtown Salem. Adjacent to a grassy Salem Maritime Park are $130,000 condos and Quincy Market-type eateries and boutiques perched on Pickering Wharf. While there is little room for further waterfront development, lately the rambling mansions built by 19th-century China-trading captains are being subdivided into condos. The same thing is happening in Newburyport and Marblehead, says Mr. Carlson of Carlson Real Estate.

Density of the North Shore population, lack of land to build on, and soaring prices have fueled the condo trend. "Anytime the values of properties don't allow young people to move in or prevent older people from [selling their large homes and] staying, you will see condominiums," Carlson says.

From condos to multifamily dwellings, the market has been "unbelievable. Demand far exceeds the supply of homes," says Dorothy M. Shea, executive director of the Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors.

After two years of sitting on the sidelines, buyers burst onto the market in record numbers when interest rates came down last year. Now, would-be homeowners are making a last dash to buy as rates push the 14 and 15 percent level.

"For the past six months the market has been crazy. We can't keep a house priced in the $70s," says Marge Carey at James Lynch Realty, Peabody. "If you're selling a two- or three-family home, just about any price you put on it, you'll get." Throughout the Greater Boston area, Realtors report hikes of 10 to 20 percent over last year.

But Carlson sees a shakeout ahead. "There are too many people in the business. [A month ago] there were 360 residential listings and 900 brokers. That's 4/5 of a listing per person." Unless interest rates climb above 16 percent, buyers will abound and the supply of homes will remain low. And prices, he says, will continue to rise.

Boston Suburbs

In the late 1800s, the wealthy Boston Brahmins moved to the North Shore, settling in estates befitting their social stature. While many have moved on, their legacy is "a life style" — and that life style still fetches higher home prices here.

TRIVIA

It's "plausible" the Arctic may have been the birthplace of life, says National Wildlife magazine. New fossil evidence indicating a high abundance of carbon dioxide in the Arctic atmosphere 50 to 100 million years ago means the region was "probably much warmer than today. The Arctic's long summer daylight hours and the area's large land mass would also have made the Arctic suitable to evolve horses, redwoods, even alligators."

SUPERMAN

Mayo confides. During World War II, he said, he toured much of the world with Gene Tunney's shows. Tunney, the late prizefighter who held both the light heavyweight and heavyweight world championship crowns, served as director of athletics and physical fitness for the U.S. Navy during the war. Mayo said Tunney used him in the shows to perform "amazing feats of strength" to boost troop morale and promote the sale of U.S. Savings bonds.

But all of Mayo's "amazing feats of strength" were not necessarily limited to the proscribed program. He said he was on board ship when he received news of a spot promotion, from Chief Petty Officer to Lieutenant. The news came in the presence of a Coast Guard Admiral, who suggested Mayo take a drink to celebrate. When Mayo declined, saying he didn't like alcohol, the Admiral made it a order.

Mayo obeyed the order, he said, but was so angry at having to take the alcohol that he performed an amazing feat of strength then and there, he shimmied up the mainmast with the admiral tucked neatly underneath his arm.

The admiral didn't particularly like the view from the mainmast, Mayo said, but after the ensuing hearing, it was entered in Mayo's papers that he should never again be required to take alcohol.

Reveries of Superman, Old Glory, and the Fourth of July cannot be complete without some mention of Kate Smith and Mayo had an anecdote of her as well. He said he was strolling up Fifth Avenue in New York during the war with some Navy buddies when he met Miss Smith and introduced himself and his friends to her. She invited them into the theater as her guests, and when she finished singing, the standing ovation which he led from his front row seat earned him a kiss from the busty lady who belted out Good Bless America to stir the hearts of Americans when patriotism seemed a much simpler issue.

How have the superheroes changed? Not much, says Mayo Kaan, though "I'm a live Superman and I've never seen a live Spiderman."

"But the superheroes are still the forces of good battling the forces of evil. Whether it's Star Wars or the Saturday morning cartoons, they still represent much of what is good about America. And when children can look to a hero who avoids booze, tobacco and drugs, isn't that all to the good?"

Mayo Kaan remains at 70 a superman, a man of steel and immense strength. Add to those powers his gentleness, humor, and the healing quality in his hands and mind, and you'll probably find he transcends the analysis of Barrier and Williams; you'll find the quintessential superhero for Independence Day 1984 — an American ideal, not the stuff of fantasy, but of true and living flesh.

MAYOKAAN

original artwork by Mary Strail

A TRUE MAN OF STEEL. Mayo Kaan helped boost U. S. troop morale during World War II by performing "amazing feats of strength" for the Navy. The feats often included bursting a chain of steel links by flexing his chest muscles — but the performance sometimes misfired, Mayo said, if one of the links hadn't been "doctored" to break easily.

Lord Cornbury, often appeared in public wearing an elaborate hairdo, a dress and silk stockings. After six years of watching him at public ceremonies in high heels and long fingernails, however, the American colonists forced him out of office, citing his outrageous behavior as the reason for his recall.

Nowadays, if students in a college dorm don't like the food they're being served, they go on a hunger strike until the quality of the food improves. In 1805, the students at Harvard protested the inferior food they were being served, but the strike didn't result in a better menu. The dean of the college proceeded to suspend half the student body.

James Madison must have had one heck of a sense of humor. As he lay dying, he reportedly told his family and friends, "I always talk better lying down."

We often hear that the stock market is about to have one of its worst days in history, possible closing at below one thousand for the first time in a couple of years. But that's booming, compared to the actual worst day in the history of the market. That day was March 16, 1830, when only thirty-one shares were traded. The value of those shares? A mere $3,470.25!

Barns were painted red in the early 19th century because, one, the color red absorbed the sunlight well and helped to keep the barns warm in cold weather, and two, farmers had easy access to the red paint. No, they didn't travel to the nearest True Value Hardware Store. They mixed skim milk with rust shavings from metal fences and nails.

You readers may think some of our present day congressmen and senators spend a lot of time delivering lengthy speeches on worthless topics in front of their colleagues, but none could be as boring or inane as the one given by Henry Clay, who spoke for one hour on his dead bull, Orozimbo.

Henry Clay had a propensity toward introducing silly measures before the senate. His most famous one requested that land be given to two Kentuckians who professed to have discovered the secret to everlasting life. Needless to say, that petition died a quick death.

The only year in United States history when this country didn't have a national debt was 1835. In that year, the debt was eliminated by selling land in the West.

We'll leave you readers with this quote from Ralph Waldo Emerson: "This country is filling up with thousands and millions of voters, and you must educate them to keep them from our throats."

Make it a good week.

CPR

The Eastern Middlesex Region of American Red Cross is offering two one-day CPR Courses this summer for those who are interested and who require quick certification. The first course will be held in Woburn on Saturday, July 28th at the North Suburban Y.M.C.A. and the second will be in Melrose on Saturday, August 4th. Both courses will be held between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. and will include review training for those holding a current card. Registered Nurses and L.P.N.'s are entitled to contact hours for initial training only. You can donate five providing they have not applied for them in CPR previously. For further information please contact the region office at 665-1351.

BLOODMOBILES

Thursday, July 5, Melrose Chapter House, Main Street, Melrose, 11:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. Friday, July 6, Choate Memorial Hospital, Woburn.

If you've never given blood before and you're a little scared, don't worry. Almost everyone is. When it's over, it's been just a breeze. Will it hurt? No more than a pin prick. And if you don't concentrate, you might miss it. You can donate five times a year with no problem. Giving blood is one very real thing you can do to help one another.

SUMMER PROGRAM

The basics of Reading Writing, and Mathematics will be offered at the tutorial camp at the North Shore Education Center in North Reading July 9 through 20 for grades 3-8. The program is designed to address basic skill needs using instruction in groups of no more than five children each. The program will run weekday mornings for one hour sessions beginning at 9 a.m. and will be taught by specialists in each discipline. An Ecology Camp is also being offered as a special feature and will be offered in week-long sessions during the July 9-20 period. The classes will run from 9-11 a.m. and will include arts and crafts using nature's own materials, identifying common roadside wildflowers, learning how to identify animal tracks and habitats, and "spying" on birds and animals. Mary L. Powers, an Environmental Science Consultant for the Swampscott Schools and the New England Marine Association, will be leading the Ecology Camp. Children may sign up for either the Tutorial Basic Skills or the Ecology Camp by completing an application at the NSEC. For more information call the Center at 664-3344 or 744-5253.

ACUPUNCTURE AND NERVOUSNESS

Acupuncture is a method of healing the body that originated in China approximately 3,000 years ago. It is a natural healing therapy in that it works to create a balance in the body's function. There are no drugs used and consequently no side effects. The body is brought back to a state of health from which point the individual can maintain his health. The acupuncture needles are very fine and therefore relatively painless. A free lecture and demonstration on acupuncture and its treatment of nervousness will be held at the Stoneham Medical and Diabetes Clinic, 106 Main Street, Stoneham, Mass., on Tuesday, July 10 at 7:30 P.M. Reservations are necessary. For reservations and/or information call 438-6132.

safe. For a free copy of "Summer Hazards," contact the Community Relations Department at the Symmes Hospital Division, 646-1500, ext. 1443.

HOME GARDENERS

A Home Gardener's Field Day including free soil testing, garden and greenhouse tours, and gardening workshops will be held Saturday, July 28.

Bring your gardening problems and preservation questions for the experts to answer.

This Field Day will be held at French Hall, University of Massachusetts from 8:30-12:30. It is sponsored by the Department of Plant and Soil Sciences and the Cooperative Extension Service.

For information call 413-545-0895 or 545-2242.

EPILEPSY

On Thursday, July 19, at 7:00 P.M. the Epilepsy Association of Greater Boston will be holding its bi-monthly meeting in the Gordon Library of the Old South Church in Copley Square, Boston. The featured speakers will be: George Hauser - a gentleman with epilepsy who will be swimming the English Channel in August, and his neurologist, Dr. Linda Buchwald.

The meeting is free of charge and open to the public. For further information contact: Marie Hennessy - program coordinator at 542-2292.

CHILDREN & MUSEUMS

Getting Started. A workshop for adults on ways of using the Museum with children. Puzzled by what to say and do with children in an Art Museum? This four session workshop is designed to help adults feel at home at the Museum when they introduce children to ways of looking at and expressing ideas about art. The group will participate in relaxed, informal activities in the Egyptian, Classical, American and Contemporary galleries. Themes to be explored with include the ways in which artists use color, line, and shape to convey ideas about animals, athletes and heroes. At the same time, cultural differences in works of art will be explored and enjoyed. Storytelling, poetry, sketching, and looking activities will be used in ways which enhance Museum visits for children. Studio art projects, inspired by what you see in the galleries, will be based on materials which are easily available at home or school. Ideas for pre-visit and post-visit activities will be developed by the group. This workshop is recommended for parents, teachers, scout leaders, child care and day care instructors, and others who want to help children feel confident and excited in an art museum.

Wednesdays and Thursdays, July 11, 12, 18, 19, from 10:00 a.m. to 1 p.m. Cost: Museum Members: $70; Non-Members: $75.

For more information, call 267-9300, ext. 300.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

The Museum of Our National Heritage has scheduled a "Meet an Archaeologist" Program on Saturday, July 7, from 2 to 4 p.m. The public is invited to this free program, to meet the archaeologist for the city of Boston, Stephen Mrozowski. Also archaeologist Bruce Follansbee of Strawberry Bank, Inc. will be on hand to demonstrate the reconstruction of pottery fragments unearthed from archaeological excavations.

On Sunday, July 8, at 2 p.m., the film, "Dancing Lady" will be shown. This 1933 film, 82 minutes long, features Fred Astaire in his screen debut, along with Clark Gable, Franchot Tone, Robert Benchley and the Three Stooges. There is a small charge for tickets to the film, $1.00 for adults, $.50 for children, and $.30 maximum family rate.

Joan Crawford is the "Dancing Lady" in this slick musical comedy, and Clark Gable and Franchot Tone are the men who romance her. The film is being shown in conjunction with the museum's current exhibit, "The Dionne Quintuplet Craze: a 1930's Phenomenon." For more information, call 861-6559.

BLUEGRASS

SUMMER HAZARDS

With the warm and relaxing days of summer upon us, many people will enjoy a long-awaited vacation, sailing, camping and other outdoor activities.

But on the dark side of summertime activities loom the summer spoils: sunburn, heat stroke, drowning, insect bites and stings, and cuts and sprains.

To guard against these and other mishaps, Choate-Symmes Health Services has published "Summer Hazards," an informational pamphlet on first aid tips.

Beware of summer hazards and keep summertime activities

FOLK MUSIC ON FILM

Wednesday, July 18, at 7:30 p.m., "In Heaven There is No Beer" (Les Blank, 1983). The most skilled and renowned maker of films about music in America, Les Blank, in his new picture turns his attention to the polka and polka festivals in the mid-west and northeast. Among the top polka bands featured in this film are Eddie Blazonczyk's Versatones, The Dick Pillar Orchestra, Wals, Solek, and the Jimmy Sturr Orchestra. Another extraordinary music experience from the people who brought you Garlic is as Good as 10 Mothers. 50 minutes.

All films are screened at the Remis Auditorium. Tickets to individual screenings are available one hour prior to each screening at the box office. Museum Members, students and senior citizens $2.50; non-Members $3.

For daily recorded ticket information for lectures, concerts and films, call 267-9300, ext. 289 or 267-2973. For complete listings and additional information, call 267-9300, ext. 306.

SOCCER CLINIC

Soccer Farm will present a clinic for soccer coaches Wednesday, July 25th at Fairfield University in Fairfield, Connecticut. A full day of soccer discussion, rules interpretation, and observation of the camp program and techniques is planned beginning at 9:15 A.M. and ending after dinner. The number of participants will be limited to the first hundred registrants. Some overnight accommodations are available.

The coaches' session will emphasize the teaching of soccer fundamentals to young players. Clinic speakers are Jim Kuhlmann of Fairfield University and Jim Kaufman of Curry College will offer their tested approaches to developing soccer basics. Soccer coaches in youth programs should find this a most beneficial clinic with its emphasis on young players.

Soccer Farm, now in its 12th year, offers sessions for boys and girls ages 6 to 18 during July and August at both Fairfield University and Trinity College in Hartford. Registrations are still being accepted for these sessions. For information on these and the coaches' clinic, write Jim Kaufman, 101 Oak Street, Wellesley, Ma. 02181 or phone (617) 237-1335 evenings.

CORAL REEF

New England's most popular underwater exhibit will reopen July 9 at the New England Aquarium. After months of extensive construction, the 180,000 Giant Ocean Tank will display a colorful 24-foot Caribbean Coral Reef, which was created by Aquarium staff and artists.

This elaborate man-made exhibit features 3,000 individual corals and sponges, representing the 35 major species found in the Caribbean. Constructed of fiberglass and polyester resin, the reef is one of the most detailed and scientifically accurate recreations of its kind. With its numerous caves, coral forests and habitats, the colorful reef will accommodate not only the larger sharks, turtles and moray eels, but also hundreds of exotic reef fishes. These smaller fishes will use the little nooks and crannies to hide from the natural predators which also swim in the Giant Ocean Tank.

The two-year coral reef project enlisted the expertise of the Aquarium's Design, Curatorial and Education departments. Much thought went into the development of man-made corals that not only look like those found in nature, but also stand up to the constant wear and tear caused by the larger animals.

New England Aquarium Curators worked together to select fishes most appropriate to this new environment. As a result, the Aquarium has collected reef-hugging as well as open water fishes in its effort to display a complete coral reef community. Some fishes were sought for their social and functional contributions, while others were included for their color, predator-prey relationships and feeding habits. In the process, the Aquarium has increased the Tank's population to approximately 1,000 individuals.

The new Caribbean Coral Reef Exhibit provides an extraordinary learning opportunity. For years to come, this exhibit will yield a wealth of

MOVIE REVIEWS

Rochelle Flynn

"The Pope of Greenwich Village" "Rinestone Cowboy"

"The Pope of Greenwich Village" starring Eric Roberts, Mickey Rourke, Daryl Hannah, Geraldine Page, Kenneth McMillan, Burt Young. Directed by Stuart Rosenberg. Screenplay by Vincent Patrick, based on his novel. Rated R (profanity, violence.)

A story about a couple of small-time hoods taking a crack at the big time is hardly a novel concept in Hollywood. But, thanks to some fine acting and a fairly good screenplay, "The Pope of Greenwich Village" has emerged as one of the few interesting films this season that is, hallelujah, aimed at adults.

Mickey Rourke and Eric Roberts play cousins bound together by the fierce, tribal loyalty that was a part of their upbringing in New York City's "Little Italy." The immensely gifted Rourke injects such energy and emotion into his role as the flashily dressed Charlie that this marks his best performance to date. And Roberts, showing a flare for comedy, once again proves he is a chameleon, completely altering his appearance and voice, emerging as a nervous bag of bones. The rest of the supporting cast, headed by Hannah, Burt Young and Kenneth McMillan, equally help to keep this movie from mediocrity.

The characters in the "Pope of Greenwich Village" are teasingly interesting, the acting is consistently fine and the plot is interesting. So what if the direction is a little flat? All the movies milled out of California aren't award winners, but they are still worth seeing. Also this movie has a few qualities that would make any sane adult run to the cinema: there are no special effects, furry animals or wide-eyed children.

MORGAN MEMORIAL CAMP

The rigors and challenges of a "High Adventure Program" will engage disadvantaged teenagers this summer at Morgan Memorial Fresh Air Camps.

Similar to Outward Bound, High Adventure is geared to the adventurous teenager (age 13-16) looking for an intensive, two-week camp experience, taking him everywhere from backpacking trips in the White Mountains to five-day jaunts in a canoe.

Applications for High Adventure and the other Morgan Memorial Fresh Air Camp programs are being accepted at Morgan Memorial's Camp Office, 95 Berkeley Street, Boston, Ma. 02116. Four two-week sessions began July 2. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. until July 6 and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. thereafter. Call 357-9710.

Extended camping trips in the High Adventure Program are designed to develop the camper's social awareness, while providing opportunities for personal growth. Rock climbing on a High Adventure trip, for example, teaches the youth that people — regardless of different backgrounds — must work together and trust each other in order to make the group's enterprise a success.

In preparation for these trips, High Adventure campers spend a week practicing on the ropes skills course. They start near the ground walking on rope cables and logs, advancing to the higher elements of the course as the week progresses. Each camper wears special safety gear in case he falls during the higher climbs.

Skills develop, as campers climb poles, hang from cables, scale walls, slide down the zip line, and rapel (climb down a cliff with rope gear). In the process, they learn the necessity of teamwork in order to succeed in these challenges.

The campers' endurance and stamina are constantly tested in the High Adventure Program. Balance, muscle coordination and ability to think in an unfamiliar situation are necessary to succeed.

Located in South Athol, 75 miles west of Boston, Morgan Memorial Fresh Air Camps hope to serve 1,000 disadvantaged boys and girls (ages 6-16) this summer. A day camp program was launched two summers ago for needy children in the Athol-Orange area.

Fresh Air Camps are primarily supported by donations from the public.

depiction of the clannish Italian neighborhood is often shallow. There are no great neighborhood shots, but fleeting glimpses of buildings and train tracks that could have been shot on a studio lot. Also, it is easy to tell who belongs to what ethnic group, as the Italians wave their hands around a lot, and the Irish cops drink too much. With the fine character actors, Rosenberg worked with, there was no need to get mired down in such stereotypical technique, as it detracts from the picture.

Geraldine Page plays the "tough as nails" mother of a crooked detective with conviction and abandon. Although her performance is outstanding, the rest of the supporting cast, headed by Hannah, Burt Young and Kenneth McMillan, equally help to keep this movie from mediocrity.

The characters in the "Pope of Greenwich Village" are teasingly interesting, the acting is consistently fine and the plot is interesting. So what if the direction is a little flat? All the movies milled out of California aren't award winners, but they are still worth seeing. Also this movie has a few qualities that would make any sane adult run to the cinema: there are no special effects, furry animals or wide-eyed children.

"Rhinestone" starring Dolly Parton, Sylvester Stallone, Richard Farnsworth. Directed by Bob Clark. Rated PG (profanity, adult themes and slight violence.)

Aside from the fact that "Rhinestone" is based on a country western song ("Rhinestone Cowboy"), any movie teaming Sylvester Stallone and Dolly Parton is bound to be a little unusual, especially one in which Stallone sings. Although the plot has fewer surprises than any made-for-TV movie, including Stallone's singing, the dialogue is much funnier than you'd expect.

Most people look at the cast and director of a movie like "Rhinestone" and decide that it is not going to be Academy Award winning material. And it isn't. However, it is a delightful, breezy little flick that is better than most mindless movies because Dolly sings. Sly has a flair for comedy hitherto unknown, both look great and there are some very funny moments. Therefore, if you watch this movie with a critical eye, you will be disappointed. But, if you want to sit in an air-conditioned theater and forget about your boss, kids' grades, or bills, then go see "Rhinestone."

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

I congratulate all graduates of high schools, colleges and universities in the Middlesex East area. Many of you perhaps are tired of listening to long-winded speeches on what you should do with the rest of your lives. Many of you, (I'd venture to guess) have forgotten every word spoken by keynote speakers.

Dear graduates, I'm not an egg-head. I didn't graduate anywhere near the top half of my class. I was one of those who made the top half possible. But I sincerely would like to tell you of Robert Browning's important message to all young or old. "Let your reach exceed your grasp, or what's a Heaven for?" As a sharpshooter I was taught to set my sights and aim a little higher than the mark I wanted to hit and I hope you will do the same in any field of life you choose. Never be satisfied with the "Status Quo," try to improve it, for that is the seed of progress.

Watts invented the steam engine and Fulton wasn't satisfied until he put it in a boat — they told him it couldn't be done — but he did it. "It won't get off the ground — it can't be done!" But the Wright Brothers on a little hill in Kitty Hawk did it.

It is because Fred Neilson so graciously sends me The Town Crier every week, that I am able to know so many Wilmington and Tewksbury residents. Some of the recent graduates are, Kathleen Desmond, summa cum laude from Salem State; Sharon Arsenault, Middlesex Community College; Joseph Murphy, Holy Cross; Amy Brown, Northeastern; David Ballou, Colby College; and Susan Mahoney, Merrimack College.

Bill Dwyer and I were in a spelling bee many years ago. My word to spell was Mississippi. I hesitated a while then asked, "The river or the state?" Miss Sullivan, her voice and temper rising to a crescendo shouted, "what in the world is the difference?" I meekly answered, "Miss Sullivan, I think the river is longer."

My nephew Dennis Tully is an amateur everything including comedian. I knew he was taking up fortune telling, so when he asked me if I wanted my palm read, I stuck out my hand and said, "sure go ahead." He then swished across it with a brush full of red paint. I couldn't catch him — but if I ever do — Woburn will have a hometown astronaut.

There are many professionals in my immediate family and first cousins. One retired judge (Salvatore Aloisi), eight school teachers, five attorneys, three accountants, five doctors of medicine and as one member of the family bluntly remarked at a wedding reception, "One failure," and pointing to me said, "You!"

I am not a college graduate, but worked as a carpenter with my father. We built many houses in Lynnfield, North Reading, Woburn and Wakefield in the 1950's and '60's.

I stopped at a house in Lynnfield recently and told the lady who answered the doorbell, "Mam, this house is one of many that I helped build with my late father — I'll describe every room so you will know I'm truthful. May I then come in and see how it has fared these many years?" When I entered I saw the floor that I installed, the stairs I helped my father build and the corner china closet that we made in our shop. I also noticed many photos of the lady's children on the mantel over the fireplace. She asked me to sit a while, then told me of the trouble-free years the house had given her family. It was obvious that she loved every room of the house. She made me promise to return some weekend when her

New type loans have "Floating" interest rates

Adjustable rate consumer loans are coming. In some parts of the country loans with floating interest rates have already arrived. Elsewhere, lenders are preparing adjustable rate loan deals that may attract customers away from fixed rate loans.

The public has accepted adjustable rate financing in mortgages; in the last year, more than half of the home mortgages granted carried adjustable rates. Now, lenders offer variable rate financing for cars, home improvements and personal loans.

Anyone in the market for borrowed money should understand how adjustable rate loans work and how to shop for favorable terms, according to the Massachusetts Society of CPAs.

Adjustable rate loans are a direct outgrowth of bank deregulation. With Federal law allowing banks to raise rates on deposit accounts, the cost of borrowing has also risen, explains Edwin Schmelzer, author of a book about variable rate loans published by the American Bankers Association.

"Deregulation has made interest rates more sensitive to swings in the economy," says Schmelzer. "Adjustable rate loans allow banks to lay some of the risk of fluctuating rates onto the shoulders of consumers."

Here's how they work: A lender can offer you an adjustable rate loan that is lower initially than a fixed rate loan because he knows that if prevailing rates move up, the financing rate will be adjusted upward. But that can generate problems: Deep discounts on initial payments could attract borrowers who cannot afford to pay off a loan if interest rates increase. In addition, some lenders have been criticized for looking only at a borrower's ability to pay off the loan at the initial rate and not at an elevated rate.

When you agree to an adjustable rate loan, be prepared to pay more than your original discounted rate. For instance, a lender may offer a $10,000 car loan for 48 months with a 12.5 percent initial finance charge. A comparable fixed rate loan may be three points higher. A borrower with an adjustable rate loan, however, should calculate the probable impact on the pocketbook if the rate shoots up to 18 percent.

The key to getting the most favorable adjustable rate loan is to shop around. Try to find a loan with a lifetime "cap." That would put limits on your finance rate. A lifetime cap of five percent on a loan that begins with a 12 percent rate, for example, prohibits your finance rate from going above 17 percent. Annual caps may also be included in a loan deal.

A typical adjustable rate home improvement loan for 15 years offers a 12 percent initial finance rate and is adjusted annually. Such a loan may have a five percent lifetime cap and a two percent annual cap. In addition, the loan may have a floor on interest rates which prevents the finance rate from falling more than five percent during the life of the loan and two percent annually, a provision that shields the lender against sharp drops in interest rates.

Another feature of an adjustable rate loan is an increase in the number of payments a borrower makes when rates rise, rather than an increase in the amount of each payment. Although you might make more payments if rates rise, the amount of each payment would not increase.

husband and children were home.

Folks, I'll certainly visit them again because it was there that I realized and heard the answer to my cousin Brian's annual remark, "You are the only failure." I love you just the same Brian — "you bet I do!"

Heroes have no use for mirrors. You would be surprised how much can be accomplished if you don't care who gets the credit. Some olive trees take at least forty years to bear fruit. Many years ago in Italy, a neighbor was chiding my grandfather saying, "Salvatore, why are you planting those olive trees, you know you won't live long enough to eat and enjoy its fruit?" "I'm planting them for my children and their children because my father planted those you see around you, for me, and I am doing the same."

Folks no man is an island. We are not an entity, but a piece of the continent, part of a family — so, plant a tree for yourself and your children, and their children.

I am honored to add MDC Officers Brian (Skip) Caron and Richard Crosby to my list of Men in Blue, who I admire.

My wife was trying on a pair of shoes in a Reading shoe store when a delivery man entered, took a deep breath and gasped out what Napoleon said at Waterloo, "I smell de-feat!!!" Thanks pal, whoever you are. I always wanted to tell her that at home but somehow never could summon up the courage.

I bought a gallon of paint at the Stoneham Lumber Company. I told the colorful young salesman that I was going to paint with a step-ladder. He looked at me, smiled and said, "You would do a much better job if you painted with a brush or roller!"

Do you know someone like this — my cousin Joe from North Reading finally married Maureen Donovan, after courting her for a long, long time. He always said he wouldn't marry until he had a steady income. Well, now they both get a monthly social security check.

A Japanese auto maker takes pride in the fact that the whole assembly line requires only 65 supervisors and the rest are robots. He said, "someday 100 percent of the work will be done by robots, so we won't have any worries about labor problems, coffee breaks and vacations with pay." "Is that so," responded a worker, "if you put all those people out of work, who will be able to buy your cars?"

Does Guadalcanal mean anything to you? How about Iwo Jima or the Solomon Islands? Maybe you remember Anzio, The Battle of the Bulge or Salerno Bay? I was involved with one of these mentioned, that's why I bought a new American Flag and will fly it on July 4th. Now, even if those names of battles don't mean a thing to you personally, "Please fly Old Glory," for those men and women who didn't return, who gave their lives for what the flag represents.

INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

THE LOWLY SHRUB COULD BE THE PRIZE OF YOUR LAWN

Think of the most tranquil, beautiful landscaped area you know of, and most likely the unsung hero will be woody and flowering shrubs. These hardworking and easy to care for year-round foliage plants may be just what you are looking for in your landscape planning and planting.

Informal hedges, elaborate designed borders, privacy screens and sound barriers or luxurious masks for unsightly fixtures are all tasks that shrubs perform beautifully.

Best of all, flowering shrubs include favorites like rhododendrons, evergreens, flamehaws, hydrangeas, azaleas, camellias, and privet, but oh so lovely roses. The home landscaper just isn't complete without these staples of the well kept lawn.

Fertilizing shrubs is the basis of all good-looking lawns. Shrubs, like most plants, require nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium for healthy growth. Nitrogen supplies that luxurious green gardeners prize. Plants need phosphorus for sturdy roots and more vividly colored flowers. Potassium is the key to strong stems and disease resistance.

The secret that professional nurserymen have used in their nurseries is now available to the home gardener. Continuous feeding. Osmocote fertilizer has been introduced to local garden centers, and supermarkets in a formula non-specially suited to nourish flowering shrubs.

Osmocote ought to nourish monthly continuous feeding plant food granules (18-6-12) are coated with a safe biodegradable resin. When the granules are applied to plants moisture in the soil penetrates the coating and the granules become tiny reservoirs of liquid plant food.

The continuous feeding of nutrients - in perfect harmony with the plant's natural growth cycle. In spring when the soil warms the nutrition is fed to the plant when the plant needs it most. As soil cools and plant growth slows the fertilization also slows in direct response to the plant's reduced needs.

Shrubs respond best to soils that are mildly acid to neutral pH 6.0 to 7.0. Many home gardeners find that an expensive soil test kit can quickly reveal soil conditions. If the soil is too acidic, only add the conditioner by adding ground dolomite lime-stone at planting time.

Once the soil is prepared with compost, peat moss or leafmold, dig a planting hole twice as wide as the rootball and approximately six inches deeper. Sprinkle Osmocote into the bottom of the planting hole according to label directions, and before the shrubs are set into place. Then forget about fertilizing again for eight to nine months.

Next remove shrubs from containers. Gently enter the shrub in the hole with a crowbar, neither raised above nor dropped below the soil line. Fill the hole halfway with a mixture of two parts soil and one part organic matter. Firm and then soak with water.

After the water drains, finish filling the planting hole with soil. Form a barrier of soil in a complete circle around the newly planted shrub and about one foot from its center to retain water for the root zone. Water the shrub whenever the soil surface dries.

Established roses will appreciate an annual spring feeding of Osmocote. Poke two to four holes into soil around each bush. Make the holes four to eight inches deep and twelve to eighteen inches out from the crown.

Divide the continuous feeding fertilizer into four to six level tablespoons per bush and pour into holes. Organic matter is recommended for any plantings, and can be found right out in the yard. Collect or purchase pine needles, or kelp chips and layer them around the plant base and surrounding area. Mulch discourages weeds, conserves moisture for the roots and protects the plant from excessive cold or heat.

With high performance Osmocote continuous feeding fertilizer and a few simple steps, flowering shrubs selected now for the home landscape will please the family long after spring planting.

There's Olympic cooking, too!

One 1984 Olympic competition no one will boycott is the 10th International Culinary Olympics to be held this year in Frankfurt, West Germany. In the 1980 competition, the U.S. team brought home the gold medal after scoring a smashing victory with Turkey Breast Oklahoma, a creation of stuffed turkey breast roast.

Would-be U.S. Olympic members must compete at regional tryouts for a full two years. Once the 12-person team is chosen, members meet to practice working together and to study recipes. The competition recipes are then selected and decisions are made months in advance as to which entrees will be prepared. The American team this year plans to create dishes using traditional foods and farm fresh produce combined with a simplistic cooking style, fresh natural ingredients and a light touch with fats.

Turkey parts will again feature prominently in the preparation of the U.S. Culinary Olympic team. Important characteristics include speed of preparation - cubed or scalloped turkey meat cooks in minutes due to its high protein and low fat properties. Turkey also gives lots of nutrient punch per calorie consumed, in fact is the lowest of all commercial meats in saturated fat content. At the same time, turkey is the lowest priced animal source of protein.

Now you may not be a member of the U.S. Culinary Olympic Team, but I have a suggestion that will make you feel a part of that effort. The next time you barbecue, try a turkey drumstick or wing or breast slice on the grill. You will be surprised, but pleased.

Crane Mansion beckons

Castle Hill, the site of the Crane Mansion overlooking Crane's Beach in Ipswich, will host an Independence Day

Celebration on the Grand Allee. This old-fashioned celebration will feature a chance to picnic with a Sousa-band concert of patriotic music. The grounds open at 4 PM with fireworks at 9 PM.

On July 5, 6, 7 at 8:30 PM, a musical theatre production of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" will be presented by the Castle Hill Theatre Company at the outdoor stage next to the Crane Mansion.

The Lydian String Quartet will perform a chamber music series at the Concert Barn on Sunday, July 8. Performance time is 6 PM. The Sunday after that, July 15, a second chamber music series will be presented by a different set of musicians.

Castle Hill is a beautiful place to visit, with or without fireworks, chamber music or Chaucer. It is not far away off of Route 133. And I recommend fried clams in Essex if you do head that way.

NORTH SHORE MUSIC THEATRE

Music Theatre

The North Shore Music Theatre at Dunham Rd., off of Route 128 in Beverly will play host to four upcoming concerts in July. On Sunday, July 15 Roberta Flack will appear in concert. Jim Nabors with the Shaw Brothers will play the Music Theatre on July 16 through 21. Tammy Wynette comes to Beverly on Sunday, July 22 and the "Great Dane of Comedy", Victor Borge appears

July 24 through 28. For further information or tickets, call the box office at 922-8500.

Barter kits on sale

A small number of military "escape and evasion" kits, first used by World War II pilots and aircrewmembers downed in unfriendly territory, are being offered to the general public in a sealed bid sale through the Columbus, Ohio Regional Office of the Defense Property Disposal Service.

The kits, commonly called "barter kits", contain gold coins, jewelry and watches. Bids on the kits will be accepted at the Columbus, Ohio office until 9 AM, Tuesday, July 24, 1984, at which time all bids will be opened to determine the highest bidders.

The sale will actually feature two different types of kits. One, the Atlantic kit is from World War II and the other, the Southeast Asia kit, is believed to have been first used in Korea and later in Vietnam.

There are 310 Atlantic and 20 Southeast Asia barter kits available for sale. Coin condition and dates, as well as ring and pendant styles vary with each kit. Because most of the kits are sealed, it will not be possible for bidders to request special composition. There is approximately .90 troy ounces of fine gold in the Atlantic kit and approximately 1.08 troy ounces of fine gold in the South Asia kit.

Information on the sale is available by contacting the Columbus Region at P.O. Box 13110, Columbus, Ohio, 43215 and requesting sales catalog 27-4271.

From barter kits to barbecued turkey, as well as music and theatre on the North Shore, COMING ATTRACTIONS has something for everyone. And if we don't, wow! you have some pretty wild tastes. But, we are open to suggestions for events of interest to all that have been overlooked. Write, care of this local newspaper, and tell us what we missed.

Ready for fun Boston? The Shriners are here!

When more than 50,000 fun-loving Shriners come to Boston for a convention in early July, residents of the Wilmington area will have ring-side seats for much of the show. The convention from July 1 to 6 will be the Shriners' first in the Hub, possibly the largest convention ever held in the city.

Most of the convention will take place in Boston, including two mammoth parades on the afternoon of July 4 and the evening of July 5. But some of the events are scheduled for the Shriners' Boston area headquarters, at Aleppo Temple in Wilmington.

A country and western concert was held on Monday, July 2 in the Shriners' Auditorium. The following morning, simultaneously, there was a clown-arama and a horse patrol competition. The events began at 9 a.m., with the clowns in the auditorium, and the horses outside. Tuesday, ended with a German beefst, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

With Shriners coming from all over North America, virtually every room in the area has been booked. The Shriners will spend some $55 million during their visit.

But there is more than fun and fezzes with the Shriners. They support the Shriners Burns Institute in Boston, the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Springfield, and some 20 hospitals around the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

What most people don't realize is that the Shriners support all these hospitals from their dues and fund-raising activities, and the charge for service in these institutions is absolutely nothing. They are free, thanks to this band of dedicated Shrine-Masons around the globe.

It's not only free service at all the Shriners hospitals, but it's constant research in places like Boston's world-renowned Shriners Burns Institute that has led to the creation of artificial skin which spells life for hundreds of burn victims.

One does not have to be a Shriner, or the kin of a Shriner to be treated at their hospitals. They are open to children of all races and ethnic backgrounds, and all free of any charge.

The events next week at the Shriners' Auditorium are also free of charge, and open to the public. The auditorium is located on Fordham Road, off Route 1-93 at Exit 13, Concord Street.

Irish Festival

July 7 in Lowell

Lowell's Irish heritage will be celebrated Saturday, July 7th, during the Irish Festival from 12 - 5 p.m. in Lucy Larcom Park on Merrimack Street in downtown Lowell. The music of the "United Irishmen" band will be the featured entertainment throughout the afternoon. Hearty corned beef and cabbage sandwiches, hotdogs and hamburgers will be offered for sale. Skilled artisans, displays of Irish crafts, and a raffle featuring a first prize trip to Irish Village on Cape Cod will highlight the festival.

There will also be a 2 1/2 mile "Fun Run" beginning at 11:00 a.m. in Lucy Larcom Park. Free tee-shirts will be given to all registrants, and trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place finishers. There is a $2.00 registration fee for the race. For more information on the race call 452-5215.

The Irish Festival is sponsored by the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Division 19, the Regatta Festival Committee, and Lowell National Historical Park. The festival is free and open to the public. The Lydian String Quartet will perform a chamber music series at the Concert Barn on Sunday, July 8. Performance time is 6 PM. The Sunday after that, July 15, a second chamber music series will be presented by a different set of musicians.

Castle Hill is a beautiful place to visit, with or without fireworks, chamber music or Chaucer. It is not far away off of Route 133. And I recommend fried clams in Essex if you do head that way.

NORTH SHORE MUSIC THEATRE

Music Theatre

The North Shore Music Theatre at Dunham Rd., off of Route 128 in Beverly will play host to four upcoming concerts in July. On Sunday, July 15 Roberta Flack will appear in concert. Jim Nabors with the Shaw Brothers will play the Music Theatre on July 16 through 21. Tammy Wynette comes to Beverly on Sunday, July 22 and the "Great Dane of Comedy", Victor Borge appears

July 24 through 28. For further information or tickets, call the box office at 922-8500.

Barter kits on sale

A small number of military "escape and evasion" kits, first used by World War II pilots and aircrewmembers downed in unfriendly territory, are being offered to the general public in a sealed bid sale through the Columbus, Ohio Regional Office of the Defense Property Disposal Service.

The kits, commonly called "barter kits", contain gold coins, jewelry and watches. Bids on the kits will be accepted at the Columbus, Ohio office until 9 AM, Tuesday, July 24, 1984, at which time all bids will be opened to determine the highest bidders.

The sale will actually feature two different types of kits. One, the Atlantic kit is from World War II and the other, the Southeast Asia kit, is believed to have been first used in Korea and later in Vietnam.

There are 310 Atlantic and 20 Southeast Asia barter kits available for sale. Coin condition and dates, as well as ring and pendant styles vary with each kit. Because most of the kits are sealed, it will not be possible for bidders to request special composition. There is approximately .90 troy ounces of fine gold in the Atlantic kit and approximately 1.08 troy ounces of fine gold in the South Asia kit.

Information on the sale is available by contacting the Columbus Region at P.O. Box 13110, Columbus, Ohio, 43215 and requesting sales catalog 27-4271.

From barter kits to barbecued turkey, as well as music and theatre on the North Shore, COMING ATTRACTIONS has something for everyone. And if we don't, wow! you have some pretty wild tastes. But, we are open to suggestions for events of interest to all that have been overlooked. Write, care of this local newspaper, and tell us what we missed.

Ready for fun Boston? The Shriners are here!

Irish Festival July 7 in Lowell

Lowell's Irish heritage will be celebrated Saturday, July 7th, during the Irish Festival from 12 - 5 p.m. in Lucy Larcom Park on Merrimack Street in downtown Lowell. The music of the "United Irishmen" band will be the featured entertainment throughout the afternoon. Hearty corned beef and cabbage sandwiches, hotdogs and hamburgers will be offered for sale. Skilled artisans, displays of Irish crafts, and a raffle featuring a first prize trip to Irish Village on Cape Cod will highlight the festival.

There will also be a 2 1/2 mile "Fun Run" beginning at 11:00 a.m. in Lucy Larcom Park. Free tee-shirts will be given to all registrants, and trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place finishers. There is a $2.00 registration fee for the race. For more information on the race call 452-5215.

The Irish Festival is sponsored by the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Division 19, the Regatta Festival Committee, and Lowell National Historical Park. The festival is free and open to the public. Lucy Larcom Park is located between St. Anne's Church and the Merrimack Canal on Merrimack Street in downtown Lowell. For more information contact Lowell National Historical Park, 169 Merrimack Street, Lowell, Ma. 01852, (617) 459-1000.

When more than 50,000 fun-loving Shriners come to Boston for a convention in early July, residents of the Wilmington area will have ring-side seats for much of the show. The convention from July 1 to 6 will be the Shriners' first in the Hub, possibly the largest convention ever held in the city.

Most of the convention will take place in Boston, including two mammoth parades on the afternoon of July 4 and the evening of July 5. But some of the events are scheduled for the Shriners' Boston area headquarters, at Aleppo Temple in Wilmington.

A country and western concert was held on Monday, July 2 in the Shriners' Auditorium. The following morning, simultaneously, there was a clown-a-rama and a horse patrol competition. The events began at 9 a.m., with the clowns in the auditorium, and the horses outside. Tuesday, ended with a German beerfest, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

With Shriners coming from all over North America, virtually every room in the area has been booked. The Shriners will spend some $55 million during their visit.

But there is more than fun and fezzes with the Shriners. They support the Shriners Burns Institute in Boston, the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Springfield, and some 20 hospitals around the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

What most people don't realize is that the Shriners support all these hospitals from their dues and fund-raising activities, and the charge for service in these institutions is absolutely nothing. They are free, thanks to this band of dedicated Shrine-Masons around the globe.

It's not only free service at all the Shriners hospitals, but it's constant research in places like Boston's world-renowned Shriners Burns Institute that has led to the creation of artificial skin which spells life for hundreds of burn victims.

One does not have to be a Shriner, or the kin of a Shriner to be treated at their hospitals. They are open to children of all races and ethnic backgrounds, and all free of any charge.

The events next week at the Shriners' Auditorium are also free of charge, and open to the public. The auditorium is located on Fordham Road, off Route I-93 at Exit 13, Concord Street.

Fun and games

Friendly competition will be in order for two series of games to be held in Wilmington during the July 4 celebration.

On Wed., July 4, teams representing townspeople and local industry will square off for an afternoon of volleyball, tennis, and badminton.

Saturday afternoon will be set aside for competition between families. Organizer Jim Stewart said that teams are restricted to immediate family groups, going only as far as first cousins.

A volleyball tournament will take place, with eight players to a team and a minimum of two females. Other events will be horseshoes, croquet and badminton, each with three categories: men's, women's and mixed doubles.

Saturday's games will begin at 1 p.m. at the common. Registration will be open at noon, but Jim Stewart would prefer if you would call him ahead of time, to pre-register, at 658-2578.

The pioneering spirit was the theme of this young man's entry last year in the bicycle parade. This year's parade will be on Wed. July 4.

NOBODY'S PERFECT.

When you make millions and millions of pairs of the world's finest athletic shoes, as we do at Converse, you're bound to make a few boo boo's. A missed stitch here. A little skuff mark there. A tiny dab of glue that our quality inspectors get sticky about.

Nothing that in any way affects the performance of our shoes (in fact, most of the blemishes are so slight you're going to have to look closely just find them). But standards are standards.

So, regretfully, every month we ship cases and cases of almost perfectly good basketball, football, tennis, and running shoes to our Converse Factory Outlets and sell them at tremendous savings. All because, as good as we are at making athletic shoes, we're still not perfect. Aren't you glad?

Wilmington Kiwanis in action

The Fourth of July celebration is a busy time for many clubs and organizations in Wilmington. Perhaps one of the busiest is the Wilmington Kiwanis Club. In addition to serving a chicken barbecue on Saturday night, Kiwanians will be on hand during the week, selling popcorn, hamburgers, balloons and tonic.

For many years, the Kiwanis Club had a horse show in North Wilmington as its major project for the year. By some coincidence, the horse show closed down at the same time that people in Wilmington were rediscovering the Fourth of July. Thus, the Fourth celebration has become a major service project for the Kiwanians & and a very enjoyable project, too.

Founded 17 years ago last month, the Wilmington Kiwanis Club exists to help other people. Funds raised through Kiwanis projects are used exclusively for charitable purposes. Whether you are "coming to dinner" with us on Saturday, July 7, or you placed an ad in this supplement, the club thanks you for your support.

This year, the Wilmington Kiwanis Club increased its number of scholarships, presenting four $500 scholarships to graduating seniors of Wilmington High School, and one to a Shawsheen Tech student.

Also receiving recognition from the club are students in the area of occupational education. Each year, students from the Business Education Department and the Industrial Arts Department at Wilmington High School are guests at a Kiwanis dinner. The students this year were presented with pocket calculators.

The Wilmington club also supports the New England Kiwanis District Foundation, which gives 27 scholarships every year.

Another favorite project of the club is a cookout which the members provide every year for special needs youngsters enrolled in the summer program at Camp 40 Acres. In addition, these youngsters also are given a pool party at the home of Kiwanian Ken McCowan.

The club enjoys a good relationship with the senior citizens of Wilmington. For the 13th year, the club hosted senior citizens at a club dinner. A new project was also added in November, when Kiwanians served a holiday dinner to residents of Deming Way. In addition, the Kiwanis Club provides prizes for whist parties held at the drop-in center.

The Wilmington Kiwanis Club contributes to the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center at the Tufts New England Medical Center in Boston. There is also a donation from the club to fund research for the correction of children's communicative disorders.

Wilmington Kiwanis President Vin Devlin (658-8368) would welcome inquiries on Kiwanis membership. Membership is limited to men living or working in Wilmington, who are not already members of another service club.

The Shriners always put on a good parade — and they will do just that on July 4 and 5 in Boston during their international convention. Events in at their Wilmington headquarters will include a country western concert on Monday, July 2, and a horse patrol competition and clown-a-rama on the morning of July 3. The convention is expected to draw 50,000 Shriners to the Boston area.

Shriners convention includes horse competition, clown-a-rama

The period around the Fourth of July will be an event-filled week, both on Wilmington Common and at the Shriners' Auditorium, off Concord Street. The Aleppo Temple, which is the Boston area Shriner's organization, is hosting an international convention of more than 50,000 Shriners.

While much of the convention will take place in Boston, some of the events will be in Wilmington, and they are open to the general public. The convention runs from July 1 to 6.

Highlight of the convention will be two mammoth parades in Boston. Anyone who has seen Wilmington's Memorial Day parade knows what a show the Shriners can put on. The parades in Boston will be similar in nature, but will involve Shriners from 65 mosques from all around North America. The parades will last for about six hours, the first one on the afternoon of Wed., July 4, and a repeat performance on the evening of Thurs., July 5. The parade route will be along Boylston and Tremont streets, from the Pru to Government Center.

In Wilmington, the convention opens on Sunday morning, July 1. The Shriners will serve breakfast on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. They will also have concessions open during the same period, opening at 10 a.m. each day.

The entertainment begins on Monday night, with a country and western concert at 8 p.m. in Shriners' Auditorium.

Tuesday will be an action packed day. After breakfast, there will be a horse patrol competition and a clown-a-rama, both at 9 a.m. The finale for the day will be a German beerfest from 8 p.m. to midnight.

The Shriners have been busy in recent weeks, preparing their temple for the first international Shriners convention ever held in Boston. New landscaping has been added, along with other finishing touches.

Virtually every hotel room in the area has been booked for the first week of July. The Shriners are expected to spend some $55 million during their visit.

The Shriners are a Masonic order, open to men who have attained their 32nd degree in the Masons. Their trademark is the fez, a tassled Arab headpiece. The Aleppo Temple, headquartered in Wilmington, has more than 15,000 members.

The organization supports a nationwide chain of hospitals and burns institutes, offering free care to children with a need.
